Rescue in Bitter

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 9.—(Monday)—(AP)—Their tenuous grasp released yesterday on 17 starving and freezing fishermen, the bitter elements that lash and tear at those who brave Lake Erie's ice, early this morning continued to cling to seven United States coast guardsmen and three fishermen.

The men are entrapped on the drifting ice field from which the 17 fishermen, marooned for 36 hours, were removed last night when the plane and the coast guard combined to effect one of the most dramatic rescues in the history of the Great Lakes.

In addition to the seven guardsmen and the three fishermen still on the ice with scant provisions, two other members of the coast guard had narrow escapes when their skiff was caught in a drifting ice floe. These two men, Seamus Harvey and Machinist's Mate Dobo, were saved when other coast guardsmen shot them a rope and pulled their damaged craft to solid ice.

Captain Martin W. Rasmussen expressed belief that the ten men were in no immediate danger, but took the precaution of dispatching a motor launch to a new base off Pinehurst. An airplane, swinging low out of leaden skies, brought a message of life today to the 19 fishermen and a boy who for almost 36 hours faced freezing death by exposure, hunger or drowning on a drifting ice floe in the choppy, wind-swept waters of Lake Erie. A boat was then used to carry the men ashore.

Five hours were required for a single trip by the small rescue boat, on which only five persons could be carried to safety, and a long night of battle with cold and ice-faced the rescuers before they could rest in the satisfaction of a heroic job well done. A larger boat could not be used because of the loose ice.

The drifting fishermen were located by the plane, chartered by the Buffalo Courier-Express, five miles out from shore and about 18 miles south of Buffalo. All morning the plane had searched in vain for sight of the stranded men.

Then the pitiful crew was found. The plane swept low over the ice floe, dropping notes. Pike poles in eager hands spelled "frank" words upon the surface of the ice. The plane turned and again swept low over the floe. From it dropped a huge can, a parachute attached to it opened and the can, filled with steaming hot coffee, settled near the men.

The plane sped back to shore and the fishermen settled down to wait through the long cold hours before all could be brought to safety.

The rescue boat, forced to struggle through two miles of ice slush and then across a mile and a half of open, choppy water to the floe on which the men waited for deliverance. Then the long struggle back to shore.

All over the eastern end of Lake Erie, fishermen were busy trading this morning when the plane began its search. One group after another was scanned by the men in the plane but in each case a circle around the section of ice on which they were fishing showed that they could reach land without difficulty.

Finally the stranded men were found, cut off from the solid ice by water still tossing fiercely after the all-day blizzard which swept the lake yesterday. A frantic waving of arms

W. & A. PROPOSAL WILL REACH VOTE IN HOUSE TUESDAY

Plan To Discount Warrants Expected To Get Before Senate Committee
By Thursday Morning.

BY R. E. POWELL.

After deliberating for five weeks over a plan to relieve the state's financial emergency, the extraordinary session of the general assembly will meet at the capitol this morning at 11 o'clock with the prospect that the bill to discount Western & Atlantic railroad warrants will come to a vote in the house Tuesday and get before a senate committee not later than Thursday.

Sponsored by Representatives Allen, Battle and Edwards soon after the session opened, the rental discount plan, having the implied backing of Governor-elect Russell, has easily held the legislative spotlight. Efforts have been made to divert highway funds and to levy additional taxes as a means of raising at least a substantial portion of the $6,200,000 state debt.

Although deemed the most important piece of legislation confronting the special session, the Battle-Allen bill, once passed out of the house, will leave several other matters of major interest for the lawmakers in the lower branch to consider while the senate, reported uncertain in its attitude toward the discount bill, debates the rentals measure.

Budget Bill Debate.

Already passed by the senate and approved by a house committee is the executive budget bill, introduced in the upper branch by Senator Shelby Myrick, of the first district, an administration measure which Governor Hardman included in the things he suggested for legislative consideration. The budget bill, rather drastic by comparison with the existing system of handling state fiscal affairs, is due to come up for debate in the house after the Battle-Allen railroad rentals bill has been brought to a vote.

Another measure of considerable interest to the state is the resolution of Representative Huddleston, of Meriwether county, calling on departments, boards and institutions for information respecting personnel and salaries. This measure, which contemplates the appointment of a special committee to sit between the special and regular sessions and examine department heads, is the forerunner of the Russell reorganization program and is the first strictly Russell bill to hit the house hopper.

While the house continues debate this morning on the Battle-Allen bill, the senate will be engaged in a discussion on the King bill to restore the use of the lash as a manner of disciplining convicts. It is one of several pieces of legislation affecting the convict system. Others include measures pending to buy a state farm and equip it with machinery to keep the prisoners at work.

Diversion Plans Hit.

All plans for diverting state highway funds, direct or indirect, have been delivered staggering blows by the house today. The measure, which would divert the road money in Georgia as definitely out of the legislative picture. The senate, in passing the Lane bill to put all taxes into the general treasury, indirectly approving diversion but the house quickly killed the bill.

Just what the senate will do with

"I simply described the costumes," the minister said, but the girls stood firm for the apology.

One man is in Grady hospital wounded dangerously, with apprehension felt for his life, two others are injured painfully but less seriously and a dozen citizens are suffering losses of money and valuables as the result of a bandit field day Saturday night and early Sunday morning which thus far has resulted in only two arrests by the police.

The dangerously wounded man is C. M. McGarvey, 29-year-old Brunswick architect, who was shot in the lung by one of three young negroes who attempted to steal his motor car while he and his sister were at the Steiner clinic. McGarvey and his sister, Margaret, encountered the negroes when they emerged from the clinic and the architect was shot when he resisted their efforts to steal his automobile and two handbags. Physicians at Grady said Sunday night that the wound might prove fatal.

Two additional robberies, both of which occurred shortly before dawn and in one of which the victim was slugged, were reported to police Sunday.

H. W. Andrews, 616 Glenwood avenue, reported that four young white men attacked him at Boulevard and Fair streets and slugged him in the head. His injuries were slight and he lost nothing but small change, he stated.

Ben F. Williams, manager of a filling station at Spring and Nassau streets, reported that two youthful

Two Safes Opened
By Yegg, $500 Taken

An accomplished yegg early Sunday night broke open and robbed two safes at the Fulton Furniture Company, 132 Whitehall street, taking $500 from one and a valuable collection, belonging to R. A. Burnett, president of the company, from the second.

The thief gained access to the building, according to Detectives B. E. Blair and W. J. Anderson, through a second-story window opening on a fire escape.

During the afternoon, George H. Robertson, vice president and general manager, accompanied by his wife, who is cashier and bookkeeper, were in the store. They left $75 in the large safe tucked inside an insurance policy. This money, which belonged to Mrs. Robertson, was not disturbed by the thief.

Once General Bliss and I had reached an understanding as to our attitude toward amalgamation of our troops, with the British, he gave me his support in later conferences. When we saw the British representatives for further talks at Versailles January 29, 1918, all their arguments were met frankly and squarely. After they had presented their case, Prime Minister Lloyd George asked Bliss for his views, to which he replied:

"Pershing will speak for us and whatever he says with regard to the disposition of the American forces will have my approval."

I then submitted a compromise program which Bliss had already seen, and the British concluded to take it under advisement.

The following day, while we were on route to Versailles together, Bliss expressed some doubt whether they would accept, but when we met with Mr. Lloyd George and some of the others who had been present the previous day he acknowledged that my objections to amalgamation were sound and told me that he had said so to his conferees the day before. An agreement was then signed by Mr. Lloyd George, General Maurice and myself as set forth in the following copy of the memorandum submitted and later cabled to Washington:

State Would Care for All

MOSCOW, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Employment of hundreds of thousands of women in industries to overcome the present shortage of labor is being considered by the soviet government.

With thousands of jobs for which there are no takers, the country today has the greatest shortage of labor in its history. Millions of women are inactive and it is believed the problem could be solved by pressing them into service. Children would be cared for by the state while their mothers are working.

"The problem of attracting hundreds of thousands of women to industrial labor is acute," said an official announcement. "In order to solve this problem as painlessly as possible, the government, together with trade unions and other social organizations, has elaborated a number of measures directed toward freeing women from domestic work and securing children with the necessary care while the mothers are at work."

"The most important measures in this respect are the opening of a great number of new nurseries, extension of the network of dining rooms and the building of laundries and other enterprises to free women from domestic work."

The government report considers the fact that 71,000 children were cared for in 1930, whereas this year 124,000 young girls will be trained in factory apprentice schools. At present there are 300,000 working women who are members of trade unions. According to the government statement, "conditions make them economically equal to men."

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Dr. Carter J. Harrell, of Richmond, one of the four elders of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who brought charges against Bishop Cannon, gave out for publication here the following statement regarding dismissal of the charges.

"My co-signers and myself filed charges against Bishop Cannon after very careful investigation. We did this for the cause of righteousness and for the church. We were sure at that time that we were right."

"After we heard the evidence in Washington this week, including some very astonishing admissions by Bishop Cannon, we were doubly sure that we were right. The committee did not vote with us but time will doubtless reveal their blunder."

BY H. O. THOMPSON.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(UP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., held blameless by his church after a five-day investigation of charges concerning incidents of his private life, planned today to seek a complete rest before resuming his prohibition and social service work.

While refusing to make a statement at this time, Cannon from his hospital room indicated he would have an announcement shortly on the verdict of 12 elders of the Methodist Church, South, who decided last night there were no grounds for a formal church trial.

There were reports he might resign, for the controversy aroused within his own denomination by the case had raised a dividing line between those sympathetic to him and those who have been seeking to oust him from the church.

The three bishops, four complaining elders and 12 clergymen who heard the evidence against Cannon and his 15-hour defense had left Washington today. Dr. Forrest J. BOWDRE PHINIZY
DIES IN AUGUSTA

Bowdre Phinizy, owner of the Augusta Herald and the Athens Banner-Herald and member of a prominent Georgia family, died at his home here early today. Mr. Phinizy, who was 50 years old, was stricken with pneumonia about 10 days ago.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Bowdre Phinizy, owner of the Augusta Herald and the Athens Banner-Herald and member of a prominent Georgia family, died at his home here early today. Mr. Phinizy, who was 50 years old, was stricken with pneumonia about 10 days ago.

Mr. Phinizy was born in this city December 27, 1871, the son of Bowdre Phinizy and Mary Lou Yancy Phinizy. He was a grandson of Ferdinand Phinizy and Colonel Benjamin C. Yancy, both of Athens, Ga., and a grandnephew of William L. Yancy, of Montgomery, Ala.

Completing his early education in the public schools of Augusta, Mr. Phinizy went to Princeton, where he received an A. B. degree. Later he took his A. M. degree at Johns Hopkins and studied also at the University of Virginia and Harvard law school. He was a member of the Alpha Delta Phi and Phi Beta Kappa fraternities.

Before he became active in newspaper work, Mr. Phinizy was admitted to the Georgia bar and practiced in Augusta from 1894 to 1896. During those years he also served as a member of the state house of representatives, to which he was elected again in 1910-1912.

From 1907 to 1923 he was a trustee of the University of Georgia, and of the medical college of the university in Augusta. He was a member of the state democratic executive committee in 1906-1907. His club affiliations included membership in the Augusta Country Club and the Biltmore Forest Country Club, Asheville, N. C. He was also a member of the Elks. During the World War Mr. Phinizy was chairman of the Richmond county local defense committee and published the Camp Hancock paper.

Three years ago Mr. Phinizy married Mrs. Meta McGowan, of Augusta. No children were born to this union, but Mrs. McGowan has two children by a former marriage, Henri McGowan and Mrs. Julian Space, both of Augusta.

Others surviving Mr. Phinizy are Bowdre Phinizy, a nephew, and Mrs. Louise Bussey, niece, also of this city.

Funeral services will be held from the residence at 4 p. m. tomorrow under the direction of Rev. J. A. Schladt, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church here. Interment will be in Westover cemetery.

The occasion was a benefit for the Scottish Rite Home for Crippled Children and for the unemployed. There was no admission charge but a collection, taken at intermission following an appeal by Dean Rainaldo de Ories, resulted in approximately $1,000 being collected for the two causes.

Lovers of music who have long dreamed of a day when Atlanta might boast of a symphony orchestra of her own, similar to those in Minneapolis, Cincinnati, Cleveland and other cities, felt that their dreams were a little nearer realization after the concert Sunday afternoon.

Not that the performance was perfect—it would be absurd, on the face of things, to expect four-score musicians to compete, after a few all-too-brief hours of rehearsal, with musical organizations that have taken years to reach their present peak of performance—but it demonstrated that, among her present talent, Atlanta has the nucleus for a symphony that could, by work, sacrifice and patience be made equal to the best.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The court-martial of Major General Smedley D. Butler was called off today by the navy department and a severe official reprimand was given the outspoken marine officer instead.

The reprimand was given by Secretary Adams after Butler had expressed regret in a letter to the navy board that his "indiscreet remarks have caused embarrassment to the government."

In reply, Adams told Butler that in view of his "letter expressing regret" and "your long record of brilliant service" the court-martial would be abandoned.

That ended the international incident growing out of a speech the marine made recently in Philadelphia, in which he was quoted as referring to Premier Mussolini, of Italy, as a "hit-and-run driver."

Both Secretary Stimson, who had apologized to Italy for the United States, and the Italian embassy expressed satisfaction with this action.

Butler denied being from newspaper at the Quince (Va.) marine base, of which he is commandant, and also declined to answer the telephone.

His counsel, Major General Leonard, refused to discuss the navy department action, explaining he was "tied down with a gentleman's agreement."

Questioned concerning reports that President Hoover was responsible for calling off the court-martial, Leonard told newspapermen: "You can speculate as much as you want to about that."

However, Walter Newton, one of the department's secretaries, said so far as he knew the president had nothing whatever to do with the action.

In his letter to Butler, Secretary Adams said his remarks received "unqualified condemnation of the navy department," adding he hoped "this incident will have a salutary effect on your future conduct in matters of this character."

Butler had explained he understood his speech at the Contemporary Club in Philadelphia was taken in confidence and that his statements were to be confined to the limits of the four walls.

"I was told by the president of the Contemporary Club before which I spoke on January 10, 1931, that I could speak my mind freely and from his remarks, taken in their entirety, I understood the club was composed of responsible members of the community interested in public questions and that my statements were to be confined to the limits of the four walls."

"This information is submitted on the assumption that it was not in the department's possession when it was decided to bring me to trial."

"I very greatly regret this incident and the fact that my indiscreet remarks have caused embarrassment to the government."

Enthusiastic Audience at Fox Hears Benefit Concert by Local Symphony

BY RALPH T. JONES.

An audience that almost filled the big Fox theater Sunday afternoon enjoyed a splendid program given by Atlanta's symphony orchestra, conducted by Enrico Lelie and composed of 75 of the finest musicians the city boasts.

Enthusiasm was aroused by the piano playing of Mrs. Charles Downman, who, as guest soloist, played the Beethoven Concerto in C with the orchestra and later gave a group of three delightful numbers alone, with a fourth in response to insistent demands for an encore.

The occasion was a benefit for the Scottish Rite Home for Crippled Children and for the unemployed. There was no admission charge but a collection, taken at intermission following an appeal by Dean Rainaldo de Ories, resulted in approximately $1,000 being collected for the two causes.

Most Resourceful of Plants Uses Birth Control in Desert

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.
TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 8.—(AP)—The creosote bush—a plant that practices birth control—has supplanted the cactus as the hardy growth best qualified to show science how to make the desert bloom.

Birth control is just one of several qualities of the creosote bush that long escaped critical attention. The bush sows the ground about it with a profusion of seed, but few of them germinate. Investigating why, the desert laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, located here, learned the plant puts a poison on the seeds which retard development. When this poison wears off, most seeds still are prevented from germinating by a similar poison carried in the falling leaves.

This perhaps is the creosote bush method of keeping down population, especially near its own roots, in a land where there is not enough water for large plant colonies.

This kind of land, which goes by the name of desert in the American southwest, covers about one-third of the world's continental surface, presenting a problem of unusual opportunity upon which the desert laboratory is working.

"The cactus," says Dr. Forrest Shreve, head of the laboratory, "because it is a Barnum among plants, misled us at first. But now in the more drab creosote bush, often mis-called the greasewood, we see an amazing mechanism that may help us to understand better how to put the desert to man's use."

Cactus and creosote grow side by side, but they are opposite as the poles in their methods of beating drought. The cactus, with shallow roots, absorbs water rapidly in wet seasons, storing it cistern-like. It has even special sucking behavior, so that the lobe at the end of the stem, farthest from the water supply, can suck harder than other sections.

Nevertheless the cactus, says Dr. Shreve, dodges the drought problem. The creosote bush meets it squarely, demanding its daily drink like most other plants.

It gets this water by roots penetrating from 6 to 15 feet. All over the southwest there are creosote bushes more than 100 years old, showing that the plant survives the worst the desert has to offer in a century. Its wide spread shows it is not too choosy about soil.

Dr. Shreve calls it the most "resourceful of desert plants. By studying its history to learn how it has developed hardiness, there is hope of finding methods for cultivating food plants in those portions of the desert out of reach of irrigation. Such areas comprise most of the desert."

INDIAN REBEL CHIEF SADDENED BY VICEROY

BY JAMES A. MILLS.

ALLAHABAD, India, Feb. 8.—(AP) A deep gloom enfolded the headquarters of the national congress here today as a result of the reply of Viceroy Lord Irwin to the recent letter of Mahatma Gandhi asking an investigation of what the nationalist leader termed gross cruelty and oppression on the part of police in subduing those engaged in the present liberation movement.

Whatever faint hope there might have been for acceptance of Ramsay MacDonald's proposal for qualified Indian home rule is now regarded as gone forever.

Members of the working committee of congress, including Gandhi, profess to see in the viceroy's reply no evidence that the government really desires to make peace with the congress except on its own arbitrary terms.

The message of the viceroy is termed "cruel and coldly official."

The hopelessness of the situation may be gauged from the fact that many members of the working committee, in conversation with the Associated Press correspondent, frankly declared they expect to be back in jail within a fortnight.

Gandhi himself is described as painfully disappointed and disillusioned by the viceroy's letter. The text of the correspondence between the nationalist leader and the viceroy will be made public in a few days.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, who attended the recent roundtable conference in London, had a four-hour talk with Gandhi and other members of the working committee today. So far as is known, Sapru failed to convince them that they ought to accept England's latest offer.

Present indications point to an early resumption of activities by the congress throughout India in an intensified form, with its attendant charges, arrests, imprisonments, trade slump and general uncertainty.

WOMAN DOCTOR NIPS CAREER BY SUICIDE

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Dr. Helen Reiner, 26, brought what promised to be a brilliant scientific career to a tragic close today by swallowing poison after a quarrel with her husband, Dr. Lezo Reiner.

The Reiners, graduates of a Hungarian university, came here about a year ago as guests of New York University, and Mrs. Reiner was engaged in research work into the bacteriology of infectious diseases.

The woman scientist, whose beauty, friends said, almost equalled the brilliance of her scientific attainments, was found dead by her husband on the floor of the Littauer research laboratory.

Near her hand was a beaker which had contained poison. On a table was a note in Hungarian which said: "This is best for you and best for me."

FLOOD OF LIQUID SUGAR INTO COUNTRY FEARED

Loophole in Tariff Act Driving Domestic Producers to Panic.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Domestic sugar producers are bombarding congressional leaders for legislation this session to ward off what they describe as a threatened flood of liquid sugar into this country.

The demands arose out of a provision in the Hawley-Smoot tariff act which the producers fear will permit sugar in liquid form to be imported at a low tariff rate.

They contend this would result in reducing tariff revenue by $100,000,000 and would swamp local production.

House leaders were somewhat skeptical today on the possibility of enacting legislation this session to reinforce the only bar to the inundation—treasury regulations which have been challenged in court.

The treasury has ruled the regular duty should apply to the liquid sugar which is used by candy makers and confectioners.

Chairman Hawley said the ways and means committee was "considering" hearings, but he could give no assurance they would be held. Nor did Republican Leader Tilson foresee action in the short time left.

Should the court decision go against the treasury, it would leave a loophole in the 1930 tariff act—a puncture made by a discovery of which, Hawley said, "nobody dreamed" while the law was being formed.

Through this opening, domestic producers predict, thousands of tons of liquid sugar would flow into the United States, paying 1-4 of a cent a gallon or 6 cents per 100 pounds, instead of the prescribed duty.

LOUIS FLADER.

The executive committee of the American Photo-Engravers' Association will meet at the Baltimore hotel on March 27-28 at the call of Louis Flader, commissioner, from the headquarters of the association in Chicago.

The purpose of the meeting is for the officers and executive committee to meet with the engravers from the south to see if Atlanta can handle the thirty-fifth annual convention which is held in October.

This convention if secured will bring between 700 and 1,000 visitors and quite a large exhibit of engraving equipment, cameras, printing presses and chemicals to the city and will last three or four days. The last convention was held in Philadelphia and visitors came from Canada, England and even Australia.

The American Photo-Engravers' Association, one of the strongest trade organizations in the United States, has never held a convention south of Cincinnati. The association is composed of nearly 800 members who produce 85 per cent of all the engravings made in the United States. Membership extends from California to Maine and covers the entire country.

The officers and members of the executive committee are: Adolf Schuetz, president, New York; Carl F. Freilinger, first vice president, Portland, Ore.; Peter Schotanus, second vice president, Detroit, Mich.; O. F. Kweit, secretary-treasurer, Canton, Ohio; Charles A. Stinson, Philadelphia; E. W. Held, St. Louis, Mo.; E. C. Miller, Chicago; Al Hoffman, San Francisco; Joseph Donovan, Boston; A. T. Wickham, Cleveland, and Louis Flader, commissioner, of Chicago.

At the time the executive committee meeting there also will be a meeting of engravers from the southern states from Texas to Virginia in Atlanta.

Man and Woman Held After Club Hold-Up

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 8.—(AP) A man and a woman were in custody today in connection with the early morning holdup of the fashionable club Belvedere by six masked bandits armed with sawed-off shotguns. About $3,000 in cash was taken.

The couple gave their names as Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Garner. They were arrested about 6 a. m. today by police, who tentatively identified their car as the one in which the bandits escaped. It bore a Little Rock city license tag.

Sheriff Clifford T. Atkinson and City Marshal Sam Moses, of Morrilton, were held at bay and disarmed by two men earlier after a short chase in the vicinity of Perryville, near here.

Three Die in Plane.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Three persons were killed today when a plane of the Dominion Air Line crashed at Wairoa. The plane was carrying passengers and mail from Gisborne to Hastings. Those killed were Pilot Knight and W. F. Baker and W. S. Strand, passengers.

SPECIAL SESSION SHOWDOWN NEAR

Congressional Leaders Plan To Force Decision This Week.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Congressional leaders determined today to force a showdown this week on the necessity for an extra session.

Adoption of the compromise on relief legislation is the first hurdle in the way of the March 4 adjournment.

Both republican and democratic leaders believed they would pass over it safely.

A compromise on veterans' compensation allowances is the second big stumbling block. Conference will be resumed tomorrow looking to a solution.

The relief compromise, providing for a $20,000,000 drought loan fund for "agricultural rehabilitation" in place of the disputed $25,000,000 Red Cross appropriation, will be called up tomorrow in the senate.

Revolt against the agreement broke out yesterday in the ranks of the senate coalition which originally sponsored the Red Cross appropriation.

However, both Senators Robinson and Cawaway, of Arkansas, who led the democratic drive for relief, have approved the compromise along with administration leaders.

They believe its adoption is assured although considerable debate is in store and only three weeks remain of the session.

If the end of the week shows any determined effort to force an extra session, the congressional chiefs are prepared to resort to drastic action to assure passage of the vital appropriation bills.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, has called a party conference for tomorrow to get his forces in agreement on a program for the remaining three weeks.

was no reference to the case from the pulpit this morning. The parishoners, however, talked it over freely among themselves and crowded around David Cannon, one of the bishop's sons, with congratulatory remarks.

Young Cannon said his father was in excellent spirits and that the strain of the long and wearying sessions of the inquiry, while wearing down his reserve strength, were expected to have no permanently adverse effect.

Cannon heard the verdict over the telephone, having left the church two hours before the decision was announced. He had waited in the study of the pastor, Dr. W. A. Shelton, for two hours but departed when it became apparent that the deliberations of the 12 elders would not terminate immediately.

remarks have caused embarrassment to the government.

In a letter entitled "reprimand" Secretary Adams replied:

"1. The navy department is in receipt of your letter of February 8, 1931, in which you express regret for the character of the remarks made by you before the Contemporary Club of Philadelphia on January 19, 1931, and in which you invite attention to the fact that prior to delivery of your extemporaneous talk at the club you had been assured by the president of the club that you could speak your mind freely and that from his remarks taken in their entirety you understood that the club was composed of responsible members of the community, interested in public questions, and that your statements were to be confined to the limits of the four walls."

"It has also just been brought to the attention of the navy department that the membership of the club had been instructed accordingly pursuant to a resolution previously adopted."

Emphatic Disapproval.

"2. You are informed in this connection that the navy department cannot express too clearly its disapproval of the conduct of any officer of the navy establishment in making remarks which tend to embarrass the international relations of the government."

"Such action on the part of an officer of your rank and length of service merits and receives the unqualified condemnation of the navy department and for their utterance, which you admit, you are hereby reprimanded."

"3. In view of your letter expressing regret, taken in connection with your long record of brilliant service, the navy department feels that it is no longer necessary to resort to proceedings by general court-martial, and expects that this incident will have a salutary effect upon your future conduct in the matters of this character."

IT "CLOSED INCIDENT"

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Cancellation of court-martial proceedings against Major General Smedley D. Butler failed tonight to unseat the views of Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., the young newspaperman.

Muscolini, of Italy, viewed Premier Mussolini, who presented a story upon which was based General Butler's Philadelphia anecdote which presented him as a hit-and-run driver.

He said tonight the matter was a "closed incident" so far as he was concerned.

STRIPLIN IS ARRESTED IN SHOOTING OF NELMS

Victim of Saturday Night Affray Reported To Be In Critical Condition.

While Oscar P. Nelms, 31, of 393 Augusta avenue, S. E., was at Grady hospital Sunday in a critical condition from shotgun wounds in the chest, detectives arrested G. W. ("Skip") Striplin, of 25 Alexander street, in connection with the shooting Saturday night.

Striplin was arrested Sunday morning by Detectives E. W. Ginn and Lon Evans, and held on a technical charge of suspicion pending the outcome of Nelms' injuries. The altercation in which the latter was shot occurred Saturday night at Marietta and Thurmond streets, where both operate places of business. According to the police report Nelms, armed with a pistol, threatened Striplin, who retaliated with a blast from a shotgun. Striplin then closed his shop and fled, it was said.

At the hospital attaches stated that Nelms was in a critical condition.

CUBAN AMBASSADOR DEFENDS MACHADO

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Dr. Orestes Ferrara, Cuban ambassador to the United States, declared tonight in a radio address that "complete tranquility reigns in Cuba and civil life is progressing normally, as it does in any other well-governed country."

The ambassador defended President Gerardo Machado against what he called "unfounded and unfriendly propaganda" and recounted the accomplishments of the Machado administration during the last six years.

"It is true that there exists the natural discontent that now prevails everywhere," he said. "That there are a number of laborers out of work and that those who belong to the so-called rich class are suffering a notable slump in their income is, unhappily, true. But this economic condition does not affect Cuba alone."

In April 1, 1930, foundations for the new building were completed, and it was necessary for the First National to move from their old quarters at Peachtree and Marietta streets to temporary quarters at 23 North Pryor street. The cornerstone for the new building was laid on June 12, last.

The upper eight stories of the new building were completed first, and tenants began moving in October 15. Three months later the banking quarters had been completed and installation of furniture and equipment began. At that time the entire building was occupied by a tenancy of 97 per cent capacity, it was said.

The new First National Bank building is the work of Atlanta architects and Atlanta builders. Pringle & Smith were designated as architects, and the Barge-Thompson Company was selected to execute the work. Working with the architects were W. Spiker & Company, structural engineers; Robert S. Newcomb, mechanical engineer, and E. W. Klein, heating engineer, all of Atlanta.

SLAIN MAN BELIEVED FORMER COUNCILMAN

Cleveland Police Say Victim of Bullets Has Been Dead Four Days.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The body of a man believed by police to be that of William E. Potter, former city councilman, who was to have gone on trial tomorrow on perjury charges in connection with a city land scandal, was found in a northeast side apartment house tonight. The man had been shot to death and investigation was under way to determine whether it was a murder or suicide.

Police said the man had been dead about four days.

Due to the fact that no weapon was found in the apartment and the belief that two bullets had been fired into the body, police virtually abandoned their first theory that it was a suicide.

Potter, who was tried twice in connection with the Coit-St. Clair playground graft scandal and was recently indicted for perjury in connection with the previous trials, had been missing from his home for a week, police said.

SAVING OUR FARMERS.

Some idea of why Georgia is not conspicuously and satisfactorily prosperous may be gathered from the census showing that near 43 per cent of the people of the state over 10 years of age are engaged in gainful occupations are on the farms of the state.

But most of them will tell you that the report that they are "engaged in gainful occupation" comes out of the region of Einstein relativity. Since 1926 farming in Georgia has been more a romantic than a gainful occupation. Farmers have been struggling against unremunerative prices for their larger crops, with lessened buying and consuming power, with burdensome taxes and increasing debts, forcing thousands of them to abandon their non-gainful occupation. Hence the growth of the cities and the loss of population in the farming counties.

The problem of how long the farmers of the state are to fight against those named forces of failure is a simple one. The answer to it in the first instance must be given by the legislators of the state. Most of them come from the farming counties and know at first hand how pressed most of their farming constituents are to keep from being turned out of house and farm by the sheriff. They ought to know how to save those farmers from extinction.

Unfortunately they are not doing anything practical to that end. They seem to be so much the puppets of their local courthouse politicians that they do not dare to initiate and enact measures that will rescue the farm industry from the forces that are making it unprofitable and undesirable. They are very noisy and eloquent about their "love for the farmer," but when brought to a test their love for the salary and fee eaters at the courthouse is greater and more effective.

The unhappy truth is that the farmers of Georgia will get no relief and recuperation from the legislators of the state and they should cease to rely upon that hope. In the present state of economic conditions over the country they must buckle down to the facts of their case and act with business sense and decision.

The first factor in their case is the absolute necessity for following the "live-at-home" plan. That sounds commonplace, perhaps, but it is the very golden key with which to open the treasure-box of Georgia farm prosperity in the future. A people who can feed and clothe themselves, as Georgia people have done in other days and in more desperate periods than this, will have no dread of famine, financial smashes in Wall Street, or the failure of world markets and prices.

Taxation, either state or federal, is not oppressing the farmers of Georgia. The state property tax is the lowest in the Union and the federal taxes are paid indirectly and insensibly. They actually effect in cash tax payments less than two per cent of all the farmers in the state.

The whole problem boils down to this, that the salvation of the Georgia farmer depends upon his determination to "live-at-home" and not out of sacks, and crates, and cans of farm produce bought from all over the American map with millions of yearly money that could and should be kept in the pockets of the Georgia people.

The big puzzle is how to revive "industry" before you revive agriculture and labor. They are the big buyers in this country.

Legislation is no longer a science in our fair land. It is a game of ringing the money peg with a horse shoe.

Those English princes are going to South America on a good will tour, but Hoover beat them to it.

Wickersham thinks we should join the world court. What for? To get an "advisory opinion" on the repercussions of his report?

Congressman Hawley is in his right role as a tar-baby, for he surely tarred his tariff bill a plenty.

OUR NEW DISTRICT JUDGE.

The nomination and certain confirmation of Emory Marvin Underwood, of this city, to be federal district judge in succession to Judge Samuel H. Sibley, will give very complete satisfaction, we feel sure, to the bar and people of the North Georgia district.

Mr. Underwood is a native of the district, born in the adjacent county of Douglas in December, 1877, of parents active in the religious life of the state—so much so that they gave to this son the names of two eminent bishops of the Southern Methodist church. The son, however, turned to the law instead of the ministry; was graduated from Vanderbilt University and took a law course under the Faculty de Droit in Paris, France. He was admitted to practice here in Atlanta in 1903 and has made this his home and field of legal activities since then.

During the administration of President Wilson he served some three years as assistant attorney-general of the United States and then as counsel for the federal railway administration. His specialty has been in railway law, but his legal culture covers well the entire circle of practice.

The coming to the federal bench of Mr. Underwood gives assurance to the people of the service of an able, conscientious and fully qualified administrator of law and justice. Solid in knowledge, unspectacular in manner, impartial in spirit, and unselfish enough to forsake financial advantage to work for the public good, the state and national judiciary have reason to be gratified by his ascent to the bench of this district.

Under his hand the high moral character of the court will be maintained, the due rights of poor and rich squarely adjudicated, and, best of all, there will be a firm and unyielding administration of the laws against crime of whatever character and degree. The long uncertainty ends with a choice that is admirable and impeccable.

THE CANNON ACQUITTAL.

The clerical jury convened at Washington to consider a series of charges against Bishop Cannon, of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, has found that no further trial of the charges is deemed necessary. The plea of the bishop that he has been "heretofore acquitted" by the general conference of the church was accepted and he goes free of possible suspension from office and further arraignment.

Both popular and political interest in the sensational church officer will now subside. His church, having found nothing wrong in his political activities and his personal financial transactions, assumes responsibility for his conduct along with himself, and with that responsibility the general public has no acute concern.

Whatever deplorable effect the spectacular conduct of the bishop may have had upon the interests of the denomination to which he belongs is for it to bear and repair, and not for the public to discuss and estimate. His church is a prominent and powerful one in the religious life of the nation, particularly in the south, and has the privilege to condone or endorse the political and financial conduct of one of its chief ministers.

But such indorsement and condonation will not extinguish an opinion that applies to all churches, and which is that they hurt religion and injure their influence by becoming active in the partisan politics of their times.

Senator Jim Watson says "you can't rehabilitate fags with dead farmers." He might have added that it can't be done with dead-beats, either.

Pa Ferguson nominates Will Rogers for our next president. Will should sue him for damages, both actual and exemplary.

Congress hates like thunder to take "time out" from its game, but why? It gets paid for all time just the same.

Next time we know somebody will be likening President Hoover to Davy Crockett's coon.

Senator Caraway puts out the old apology—"If I said anything I am sorry for I'm glad of it."

The swan song of the present legislature is mixed up with too many static squawks.

Those western rains also took the form of limited farm relief. Pluvius and Hoover seem men of like mind.

Mussolini did not run over a child. It was a full grown Italy.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Futurist Meal.

In one of the chemical laboratories at the Sorbonne in Paris a group of scientists and students have busied themselves of late with the concoction of synthetic food. When they have advanced sufficiently in their quest to give a show of their production, they called in the press, thinking, no doubt, that if somebody was to be poisoned in the experiment they might as well select a newspaperman or two for victims. It so happened. The announcement was that journalists were to eat "the meal of the future." Before we go any further, let me say that one eats a dozen meals like that, there is not likely to be much future, nor perhaps no future at all.

The menu started off with pea soup with pig knuckles. It being a bitter cold day, the prospect of a free meal did not seem to be sneezed at. The pea soup with pig knuckle was a time pill. A yellow pill, at that. It tasted like castor oil. It should have been absolutely tasteless, one of the professors said. Ah, yes, sure, that's what mother used to say, too, about castor oil.

"Would you care for a cup of coffee?" asked an amiable young lady, one of the chemistry students, who had turned herself into a waitress for the serving of the meal of the future.

"Yes, with pleasure," we replied. Coffee remains a great solace in times of stress. It turned out to be another pill, by gosh. Green this time. How they managed to get that green color on coffee is past comprehension. Coffee, no matter how strong or how much concentrated, ought to remain brown, we thought. Still, this pill was green.

They gave us some bread with our breakfast and potatoes. It was a wee! The bread consisted in a pink little cube. It contained all the ingredients, vitamins and nourishing strength of a quarter pound of bread, that little cube did; wonderful. We swallowed it in one gulp, fearing more tastelessness. The bread was a rare object of curiosity, that looked more like a box of matches than anything else we can think of, went the same way. We chewed it, it had some taste, indeed. A taste of yellow soap! But of all this cheese took the cake, so to speak. It was brown like a burned coffee-bean. It's flavor lingered a long time—a haunting flavor of sand with a dash of wax floor polish, we'd swear.

We thought better to decline the wines and liquors that were graciously offered in the shape of tiny candies, wrapped in tissue paper. The truth is we had fallen for the chocolate mold, musing upon the lot of our luckless unborn grandsons and granddaughters.

The Frederick Film.

Frederick the Great was in the habit of playing the flute. No matter how bad things went, the Prussian king, to whom the pope referred scornfully as "the little marquis of Brandenburg," gave his three or four solo concert a day. While the three women rulers of Europe plotted his downfall, Madame de Pompadour in France, Elizabeth in Russia and Maria Theresa in Austria, Frederick tackled the one sonata after the other. They have just made a film of this flute concerto of Sans-Souci in Germany. The film was directed by the Hugenberg concern. Herr Hugenberg is the newspaper and film magnate of Germany, a man more powerful perhaps than the late Kaiser in Germany. The film was a glorification of arms. It takes the place of the forbidden Remarque film, which the government has proscribed judged detrimental to the dignity of the imperial armies of Wilhelm II.

Frederick is seen and heard to play his flute on his pieces on the spot. He receives secret information, he plots to encircle Prussia. He gives no inkling that he is alarmed, but in the night he watches his grenadiers before his adversaries are ready. And then, "Germany breathes again," say the captions in the film, "Germany Awakens."

Wherever the film is shown the Hitler clique in the audiences just seems to await the moment to burst into frantic applause. But the film plays the battle hymns: "Frederick Rex," "Watch on the Rhine," etc. The young Germans see the gorgeous six-foot grenadiers of Frederick, hear the blaring bugles and the roll of drums, in other words, they are awed by the German war machine. That war is a fresh and joyous experience. There can be no objection, of course, that Germany tries to instill new confidence in the people in these days of gray crisis. But the younger generation, through the invocation of these martial scenes, learns nothing of war. They don't see bombardments and trenches and other frightful spectacles. In the Frederick film they see a gang of splendidly accoutred soldiers simply walk over their enemies.

Remarque's film was barred because he was supposed to have injured the dignity of the German army. Frederick did not injure the dignity of his own army. He insulted the whole German people not once, but a thousand times. He even insulted his own "horrible language of frog-croaks, spoken by uncouth barbarians." This was but one of his milder expressions. (Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution.)

You Can't Develop Backbone By Sliding Down Hill

By Robert Quillen

The men and women who ruled America in the time of our grandparents possessed a quality called character.

It was a quality developed and sustained by the practice of doing things that should be done and enduring things that should be endured. The word "ought" was then in general use. A proper man did an unpleasant thing because he thought he ought to do it. And somehow the habit of doing unpleasant things for the sake of duty and right made him a steady, dependable, unflinching kind of man.

This generation has a sense of duty, also, but it isn't the same kind. It is a sense of the other fellow's duty.

It is no longer the fashion to stand up before the congregation and confess one's sins. People now get the same satisfying consciousness of duty well done by revealing the other fellow's sins.

Only when that task is finished to his entire satisfaction does he concern himself with the business of mending his neighbors' ways.

Unfortunately, he is at times tricked by his vanity and led to believe himself flawless while he is still short of perfection.

This is the beginning of his undoing; for he now feels free to reform his neighbor, and complete absorption in that happy task leaves him no time to look for imperfections in himself.

He can't correct himself, for he does not realize that he needs correcting. He has no capacity for the experience described by old-fashioned preachers as a "conviction of sin."

We are a self-satisfied generation, and when we do our bit for righteousness by scolding the neighbors, we feel free to indulge ourselves as we please.

We feel so very respectable that anything we do seems all right merely because we choose to do it. Home-made sin is at the worst an indiscretion.

And that explains why so many people borrow the firm's money without bothering to ask permission.

They are always nice people. All they need is a little character.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

(Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution by the Southern Newspaper Alliance.)
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 8. (NANA)—Local purveyors of fashion who are fast approaching the elegance of Beau Brummel wear their overly shiny hats and fingerlings and extravagances of their evening attire accessories, pulled a fast one at our most recent opening.

They initiated us timid souls to the latest in masculine elegance for evening dress. Three gardenias in the boutonniere, if you please. Three, no less—and take it, peasants, and like it!

I've seen comedians with sunflower in their buttonholes; but it was such deliberate funning that it lost some of its kick. And I've read that Oscar Wills of Flaherty Wilde affect this form of boutonniere when he is dressed in his evening dress and publicized himself in those good old days when authors were supposed to be outlandish.

Joquin Miller tried a red satin sash with his tuxedo coat and London, always game for novelty, wore this form of boutonniere when he was in the "Cimarron" opening which topped the orchid business for any single night Hollywood has yet had.

Behind the tragedy which a burst of rain caused at the "Cimarron" opening, is one of the priciest funny stories of the village.

The theater, rocked by the shock of the rain, still under contract to Pathe. There is an etiquette in this business which this season's tactics are sure to have swept aside. Joan Bennett has her face in the corner, too; her bit of sleuthing after John Considine the other night is not the like of the story the publicity departments like to tell.

They really like to whisper tales of ladies being shanghaied; and they love you when you fall for them.

Best of all, we know how to build up immunity in any instance where immunity is insufficient to keep or make the patient well. That is the purpose of all successful treatment. (Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution.)

GYRO CLUB CHAPTER IS ORGANIZED HERE

Another Atlanta club with an international affiliation sprang into being Sunday night when the Gyro Club of Atlanta was formally chartered at a dinner in the Atlanta Athletic Club attended by officers of the International Association of Gyro Clubs.

International President James Northey, of Toronto, Canada; District Governor Gordon Macklin and Trenton Collins, president of the club in Canada and 43 in the United States, with about 3,500 members. It had its inception in Cleveland, Ohio, as the result of the friendship of the city of Cleveland in that city.

Among the cities represented in the party stopping over here for the day were Cleveland, Columbus, Indianapolis and Cincinnati.

Officers of the Atlanta club are: Phil Ammons, president; W. B. Diabro, Jr., vice president, and Joseph J. Hopkins, secretary-treasurer.

Man Killed Instantly.
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 8.—(AP) W. R. Tyree, 50, of Knoxville, was killed instantly and Mrs. Byrd Morton, of Knoxville, was seriously injured when a motor car in which five other persons were riding left the highway two miles west of Loudon early today.

The car, driven by W. R. Tyree, was attempting to pass another automobile when the accident occurred. The car rolled over into a field 100 feet away and was practically demolished.

Confirmation of Underwood Expected Early This Week

Senate Judiciary Committee Likely To Act on Judgeship Appointment Tuesday or Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Early confirmation of E. Marvin Underwood, of Atlanta, to be United States district judge for north Georgia is expected by the senate. As far as can be learned there is no opposition to Mr. Underwood, whose nomination was announced yesterday by the president.

The nomination now is with the senate judiciary committee where it was sent yesterday as soon as it came from the White House. It is expected that this committee will report favorably on the nominee Tuesday or Wednesday and confirmation will come a day or so later.

BAPTIST SCHOOL CONVENES TODAY

1,000 Young People of Atlanta Association To Attend Sessions.

The thirty-sixth annual senior training school of the Atlanta Association of Baptist Young People will convene at the First Baptist church at 6:30 o'clock this evening. The meeting will be the first of a series of five nightly courses, with an attendance of approximately 1,000 delegates expected.

The first session will be opened with a general introduction of members of the faculty, followed by assignment of the various classes to study rooms. According to information received from Grady A. Lee, of the Second Baptist church, president of the association, speakers and teachers from a number of southern states will be present.

Following sessions of the training school will be held each evening at 6:30, the routine as planned by the program committee providing for a half hour's entertainment period between 7:15 and 7:45 each night, during which music will feature the gatherings. Following this will be a general assembly of all students, teachers and speakers attending the school. Entertainment will be in charge of Edwin S. Preston, of Atlanta, Georgia. B. P. U. secretary.

The faculty, which is made up of outstanding Baptist workers in the south, consists of E. E. Lee, Dallas, Texas; Sibley C. Burnett and Lyman P. Hailey, both of Louisville, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Lambdin, Nashville, Tenn.; R. Elton Johnson, Louisville, Ky.; and Henry C. Rogers, of Montgomery, Ala.

Among the teachers scheduled to lead senior classes during the convention are Dr. M. A. Cooper, pastor of West End Baptist church, who will teach "Pilgrim's Progress"; Dr. Louis D. Newton, pastor of Druid Hills Baptist church, who will lecture on a recent study course book for seniors entitled "Investments in Christian Living"; and Frank A. Hooper, Jr., prominent Atlanta attorney, who is president of the Georgia B. P. U., who will teach in "Parliamentary Law."

The studies in effect will assume the form of competition, the church having the highest percentage of B. P. U. enrollment attending the school, taking examinations and carrying out associational obligations to be awarded a silver loving cup as prize.

RAIN STILL NEEDED OVER LARGE AREA

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Winter turned its coldest shoulder today on midwest areas pleading for an end to the drought.

Instead of more rain to supplement the little absorbed by thirsty fields Friday night, there were lower temperatures and clear skies.

Snow blanketed the fields of North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and part of Iowa, but in those states the crops were not affected as in southern Illinois and Missouri.

Drizzling showers Friday night brought hope and encouragement to the "Little Egypt" district of southern Illinois, but this was blasted when the total fall was found to measure less than an inch.

It is an emergency period for south Illinois. Observers have called this the worst water famine in fifty years. Crops have been endangered, and cities have turned to rationing what little water remains in their reservoirs.

Goodyear Officials Come to Atlanta To Confer With Field Representatives

Executives of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company who will take important parts in the annual conference with field representatives which will open today at the Biltmore hotel. Left to right are: R. S. Wilson, W. D. Shilts and W. G. Starnes.

The annual two-day conference of field representatives of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Inc., started this morning at the Biltmore hotel. Salesmen from the Birmingham, Charlotte, Jacksonville, Richmond and Atlanta branches of Goodyear are attending the sessions, the purpose of which is to review 1930 accomplishments and discuss 1931 plans. The procedure is part of a thorough sales training program that has been in effect several years.

According to W. G. Starnes, manager of the Goodyear branch in this city, and Mr. Wilson, vice president of the company, the outlook for their organization in 1931 indicates an increase in sales volume over 1930. Appearing on the two-day sales program are: W. D. Shilts, secretary of Goodyear; Fred L. Morgan, manager of automobile tire sales; E. R. Preston, manager of truck and bus tire sales; C. T. Hutchins, advertising manager; R. E. Davis, of the commercial research division; P. E. Haver, retail sales manager; V. R. Jacobs, assistant manager of the department of government sales; J. E. May, manager of tire sales; and D. W. Sanford, manager of southern division.

Outstanding college professors and other important leaders of young people in the south will be heard at the annual session of the Georgia Student Volunteer Union for Foreign Missions when it convenes this week-end, February 13-15, at the First Presbyterian church, Decatur. Agnes Scott College students, church members and friends of the movement will entertain the 200 delegates expected to attend. Virtually every outstanding college and university in the state will be represented.

Dr. Donald W. Richardson, of Nanking, China, now professor of missions at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, will deliver two addresses in keeping with the theme of the conference, "Our Message to the Modern World."

Dr. W. T. Watkins, professor of church history, and Dr. W. A. Smart, professor of biblical theology, two Emory University professors, will deliver addresses on the program, which will open Friday night and close Sunday afternoon. Dr. W. A. Smart, speaker much in demand among college students over the south, middle west and the east. He spoke this week-end at Williamsburg College, at the student-faculty conference, to which twelve Virginia colleges sent representatives.

Professor Garfield Evans, formerly a missionary to Cuba and an outstanding worker in the Epworth Leagues of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has been secured to make addresses at the conference. Professor Evans is also an author of books widely read among young people.

J. M. Connolly, outstanding young professor in Paine College, will conduct roundtable discussions and speak to the Georgia college students.

Miss Cornelia Wallace, Agnes Scott College senior, the president, will be the chairman at the sessions of the conference. Other officers are: Miss Ruby Blackwelder, Georgia State Teachers' College, Athens, vice president; Miss Elizabeth Johnston, Young Harris College, secretary; Edmond Rice, Emory University, general council member; T. R. Ballen, Emory student treasurer; Frank A. Settle, Bulletin secretary, Emory University; Miss Faye Sessions, Sumner, alumni secretary; Mrs. W. A. Turner, Newman; J. M. Connolly, Paine College; and Jesse R. Wilson, New York city, form the advisory committee to the Georgia union.

Outstanding student leaders from Alabama, Tennessee, South Carolina and North Carolina unions are expected to attend the meeting as visitors. Regular delegates are expected from Agnes Scott, Emory, Georgia Tech, the University of Georgia, Georgia State Teachers' College, Athens; LaGrange College, Mercer University, Wesleyan College, Young Harris College, Shorter College, the Berry Schools, Columbia Seminary, Georgia State Teachers' College, Milledgeville, and Andrew College.

assured the fliers that these were the men they sought. Men rushed to collect bits of wood. Circling above them the fliers read the thought which was uppermost in the minds of these men who had lived through 36 hours of horror. Just one word: "Eat."

Then another word-picture formed upon the ice: "Charcoal."

And finally: "Help."

In those three words, the fliers read a serial story of the hours of anxious waiting. Hunger first, as yesterday wore on and meal times passed without food. Darkness settled and the second chapter was written into their minds with the recurring thought: "Will we be found?" Then, as the bitter cold of early morning seeped through the sweaters and clothing of the fishermen, came the chapter which might well have been the last of the story—a tale of slow freezing to death—had it not been for the men of the coast guard and a miracle of modern science which enables men to lift themselves above the barriers of ice and earth.

HOOVER'S ATTEND
LINCOLN SERVICES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP)—In the church where Abraham Lincoln worshipped, President Hoover today heard a plea for a return of the faith and compassion characteristic of the Civil War chief executive.

Departing from his custom of attending the Friends meeting house, President Hoover went to the New York Avenue Presbyterian church for its annual Lincoln birthday service.

Commit Crime.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Charles F. Shipman, 60, prominent Chicago businessman, shot and killed his wife, Mercedes, 58, and ended his own life here today after cunningly allaying the fears of friends and relatives.

Even as Shipman fired the shots that ended two lives, Charles Meyerholz, Mrs. Shipman's brother, who came here from Pennsylvania to prevent just such a tragedy, was asleep in an adjoining room.

His brothers, Fred and Frank Meyerholz, had just returned to their homes in Wapello, Iowa, after igniting him in what all regarded as a successful effort to banish the idea of suicide from Shipman's mind.

Shipman evidently had planned the tragedy for some time. His wealth, friends say, was virtually swept away in unsuccessful wheat operations at the board of trade, of which he was a member. Further losses at the race track here were said to have thrown him into the depths of despondency.

Last Friday Meyerholz, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania, received a telegram from Shipman which read: "Come at once. Minnie is dead and I will be dead before you arrive."

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Charles F. Shipman, 60, prominent Chicago businessman, shot and killed his wife, Mercedes, 58, and ended his own life here today after cunningly allaying the fears of friends and relatives.

Even as Shipman fired the shots that ended two lives, Charles Meyerholz, Mrs. Shipman's brother, who came here from Pennsylvania to prevent just such a tragedy, was asleep in an adjoining room.

His brothers, Fred and Frank Meyerholz, had just returned to their homes in Wapello, Iowa, after igniting him in what all regarded as a successful effort to banish the idea of suicide from Shipman's mind.

Shipman evidently had planned the tragedy for some time. His wealth, friends say, was virtually swept away in unsuccessful wheat operations at the board of trade, of which he was a member. Further losses at the race track here were said to have thrown him into the depths of despondency.

Last Friday Meyerholz, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania, received a telegram from Shipman which read: "Come at once. Minnie is dead and I will be dead before you arrive."

Meyerholz at once phoned his brothers and told them to meet him in Chicago. Meanwhile, detectives were sent to interrogate Shipman, who said the wife was a hoax designed to bring his brother-in-law here to discuss financial matters. He told police Meyerholz owed him a considerable sum of money.

When the brothers met, they joined in pleading with Shipman to act sanely and, Meyerholz told police, he agreed to advance Shipman $1,500 with which to attend to his immediate financial needs while he was attempting a comeback in business.

Shipman was highly amenable, Meyerholz said, and readily agreed to attempt a new start. Two of the brothers returned to their homes and the third retired early, confident that the crisis was passed.

Being partially deaf, Meyerholz did not hear the shots during the night. Evidence that Ship had forgotten nothing in his well studied plan was seen in his will, which lay on a table only a few feet from his body. He had drawn the will only a few days before, explaining to the witnesses that he was going to undertake a perilous mission.

Shipman had been for 30 years advertising manager for several prominent Union Stockyards firms. He was well known in financial circles.

Two Slain in Battle
Started by Holdup

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP)—A thwarted bandit and one of his intended victims died today after a holdup which turned into a battle royal in the office of the International Baking Company.

Jose Prado and Emanuel Sena entered the bakery last night, police said, and attempted to rob its three owners and three other men. The victims laid down a barrage of chairs, tables, shovels, tongs and bags of flour while the bandits emptied their pistols.

Police came on the run to find both robbers unconscious and four of the bakery men wounded. Prado and Anthony Carriera, one of the owners, died today.

CHARLES A. JONES, 37,
DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Found on the streets in a dazed condition, a man later identified as Charles A. Jones, 37, son of Jerome Jones, of 45 Eleventh street, editor of The Journal of Labor, died in a cell at police station early Sunday morning, apparently from a heart attack.

Jones was taken to the station house by Patrolman C. R. Faulkner, pending identification. Shortly thereafter a prisoner found him dead in a cell, where he had been placed by the turnkey. The body was taken to the funeral home of Harry G. Poole, where identification was established.

At the undertaking parlor it was stated that Jones presumably had died from a heart attack. Members of the family asserted that he had been suffering from heart trouble for some time. An inquest is to be held at 8:30 o'clock this morning at Poole's chapel. Coroner Paul Donohoe said Sunday.

STATE DEATH HOUSE FILLED TO CAPACITY

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 8.—(AP)—For the first time in South Carolina's penal history, the death house at the state penitentiary here is to be filled to its capacity.

Before dawn tomorrow, six condemned negroes will be marched into the six separate cells in the little red brick building that houses the electric chair.

They are sentenced to die February 26 for two murders in Lexington county. Should all six be electrocuted the same day it will set a new record in this state.

Shoots Divorced Mate.

SEATTLE, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary O. Burdick, 42, shot and killed her divorced husband, Joseph O. Burdick, here last night, explaining he would not cease paying her unwelcome attentions. She said ever since their divorce a year ago, Burdick "had been bothering her."

CHICAGO LEADER KILLS WIFE, SELF

Prominent Business Man Outwits Relatives To Commit Crime.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Charles F. Shipman, 60, prominent Chicago businessman, shot and killed his wife, Mercedes, 58, and ended his own life here today after cunningly allaying the fears of friends and relatives.

Even as Shipman fired the shots that ended two lives, Charles Meyerholz, Mrs. Shipman's brother, who came here from Pennsylvania to prevent just such a tragedy, was asleep in an adjoining room.

His brothers, Fred and Frank Meyerholz, had just returned to their homes in Wapello, Iowa, after igniting him in what all regarded as a successful effort to banish the idea of suicide from Shipman's mind.

Shipman evidently had planned the tragedy for some time. His wealth, friends say, was virtually swept away in unsuccessful wheat operations at the board of trade, of which he was a member. Further losses at the race track here were said to have thrown him into the depths of despondency.

Last Friday Meyerholz, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania, received a telegram from Shipman which read: "Come at once. Minnie is dead and I will be dead before you arrive."

Meyerholz at once phoned his brothers and told them to meet him in Chicago. Meanwhile, detectives were sent to interrogate Shipman, who said the wife was a hoax designed to bring his brother-in-law here to discuss financial matters. He told police Meyerholz owed him a considerable sum of money.

When the brothers met, they joined in pleading with Shipman to act sanely and, Meyerholz told police, he agreed to advance Shipman $1,500 with which to attend to his immediate financial needs while he was attempting a comeback in business.

Shipman was highly amenable, Meyerholz said, and readily agreed to attempt a new start. Two of the brothers returned to their homes and the third retired early, confident that the crisis was passed.

Being partially deaf, Meyerholz did not hear the shots during the night. Evidence that Ship had forgotten nothing in his well studied plan was seen in his will, which lay on a table only a few feet from his body. He had drawn the will only a few days before, explaining to the witnesses that he was going to undertake a perilous mission.

Shipman had been for 30 years advertising manager for several prominent Union Stockyards firms. He was well known in financial circles.

BRITON HAS SELF ARRESTED FOR BEING ILLEGALLY IN U. S.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 7.—(AP)—Declaring his conscience hurt him over remaining in this country illegally, Edward Faulkner, 23, English contortionist, sent a policeman for an immigration inspector of 45 Eleventh street, editor of the paper, to wait a deportation hearing.

Faulkner said he was unconscious when he entered America at Miami more than a year ago, having been beaten, robbed and set ashore after participating in a fight aboard a tramp steamer on which he had worked his way from Liverpool.

Two Slain in Battle
Started by Holdup

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP)—A thwarted bandit and one of his intended victims died today after a holdup which turned into a battle royal in the office of the International Baking Company.

Jose Prado and Emanuel Sena entered the bakery last night, police said, and attempted to rob its three owners and three other men. The victims laid down a barrage of chairs, tables, shovels, tongs and bags of flour while the bandits emptied their pistols.

Police came on the run to find both robbers unconscious and four of the bakery men wounded. Prado and Anthony Carriera, one of the owners, died today.

Council Decides War Can't End 'Til 1919

ing over the personnel of entire divisions under the following conditions:

1. That the infantry be trained with British divisions by battalions, under such plan as may be agreed upon.

2. That the artillery be trained under American direction in the use of French material as at present.

3. That the higher commanders and staff officers be assigned for training and experience with corresponding units of the British army.

4. That when sufficiently trained, those battalions be reformed into regiments and that when the artillery is fully trained all the units comprising each division be united under their own officers for service.

5. That the above plan be carried out without interference with the plans now in operation for bringing over American forces.

6. That question of supply be arranged by agreement between the British and American commanders-in-chief.

7. That question of arms and equipment be settled in similar manner.

A few days later Secretary Baker replied stating his views as follows: We have no objections to the program which you suggested, but in our judgment it is wiser for the British to undertake to transport six complete divisions across the sea to be disposed of and trained by you direct in conference of course with the commanding officers of the other forces.

Plans Not Always Followed. Of course this was in exact agreement with my views as expressed in the proposal I made to the British and to which they agreed, but the fact of war intervened more than once to prevent strict adherence to plans and agreements.

The supreme war council began its third session January 30. At the opening session Mr. Lloyd George made a statement in some detail of the situation on the Allied front. He then spoke of the large number of casualties the Allies had suffered during 1917 and in a very pointed manner declared that the costly offensives had produced no tangible results. Instead, he said, the Allies now found themselves short of man power at a critical period of the war. His sharp criticism was warmly directed at Sir Douglas Haig and General Robertson, but neither was given an opportunity to reply.

The military representatives presented a joint note with reference to military policy, as directed at the December meeting, and the opinion given was identical with that of the conference at Compiègne January 24 and also in August at the meeting in Paris, except that the campaign under General Allenby then in progress in Palestine should continue. It will be recalled that these two informal conferences of commanders-in-chief had concluded that the Allies should remain on the defensive on all fronts until the Americans should arrive in sufficient force to warrant the offensive.

The joint note was approved as the decision of the council, with the understanding, as suggested by the French, that no white troops should be sent from France to Palestine. It was decidedly the opinion of M. Clemenceau and of all others present who expressed themselves that the war could not be ended until 1919, when the American army, it was thought, would reach its maximum strength.

The Allied forces at the moment were superior in all active fronts, except in the Balkans, but the Greek mobilization, when completed, would add sufficient strength to give the Allies the advantage there also. The American strength was then negligible, but the prospect was that we should have a few more divisions ready for service by June, and by September possibly 17 or the equivalent of 34 French divisions.

The danger on the western front lay in the continuous increase of the German forces and in their ability to concentrate in turn against the French and British, and as neither had sufficient reserves of their own it was clear that unless some arrangement could be made between them for better co-ordination and support the war might easily be lost before the Americans should arrive.

The study of this problem by the military representatives led to the joint note which proposed a plan for the organization of a general Allied reserve. It provided that the British, French and Italian armies should each set apart a certain number of divisions to constitute this reserve, which would be called into action only in a great emergency. The discussion of this question became rather acrimonious. Haig and Petain both pointed out that they would be short of divisions very soon in case of severe fighting, and presented figures on the subject that were very disturbing.

General Robertson was disappointed. But the council's scheme was cut and dried. The recommendations set forth in the note were adopted then and there by the council. The general reserve was created and its control was placed under an executive war board to consist of Generals Koch, representing the French; chairman; Bliss, the Americans; Cadorna, the Italians; and a British general officer to be named.

At this meeting Mr. Lloyd George designated General Sir Henry Wilson as the British representative, to the very evident disappointment of General Robertson, who was present at the session. The selection of Wilson was regarded by the British high command and the war office as open disapproval of their conduct of the war.

In accordance with the decision the executive war board, as the administrative authority of the supreme war council, sent out instructions directing the French and British commanders-in-chief each to select a certain number of divisions to form a part of the general reserve. The number was finally fixed at thirty in the British, thirteen French and seven Italian.

The use of these reserves appeared somewhat indefinite, but the idea was brought out in the discussion seemed to be that certain divisions in each army would be designated as constituting a general reserve, to be so situated that they could be moved expeditiously to the support of the army seriously attacked, as might be determined after consultation between the French and British commanders-in-chief of the army affected.

This plan of the supreme war council did not meet with the approval of the army, especially the British, who apparently regarded it as merely an indirect means of assuming supreme command.

One other matter somewhat linked up with this question of a general reserve was the proportion of line that should be held by the French and British armies.

The French occupied about 340 miles of front, with their right on the Swiss border, while the British had only about 110 miles, extending from the French left near St. Quentin to the right of the Belgian army.

The French argued that they were holding a greater proportion of line than the British, but the latter contended that a large part of the French front was inactive and did not require many troops, while the British front was active. After considerable discussion the question was referred to the military representatives on the council for an opinion. Their recommendation was not acceptable to the French, so the matter was finally decided by agreement between General Petain and Field Marshal Haig, under which the British were to extend their front some 28 miles, to a point near Barisis. This concession was used later by Sir Douglas Haig as one reason why he could not spare divisions for the general reserve.

Under date of February 4, 1918, I wrote Secretary Baker:

I am sending this letter by General March, giving a brief report of the negotiations concerning the troops to be brought over by the British and trained with their divisions.

Unwise to Split Divisions. After fully considering the matter I am quite convinced that it would be unwise for us to break up divisions by turning over infantry battalions as such to extended service with the British. The main reasons are set forth in my memorandum cabled to the department, copy of which is enclosed herewith.

I am also enclosing two other memoranda, one a conversation with Marshal Joffre, which I would request be held in the strictest confidence, and another giving a synopsis of a conference held between ourselves and the British on the subject of their request for men.

From the former it will be seen that the marshal takes the same view that I do regarding service with the British. He further does not look upon the situation on the western front with quite so much alarm as is indicated in statements by Marshal Haig and General Petain.

One more word regarding this discussion. General Bliss, upon his arrival, was inclined to accede to the British request, basing his action upon the cable he received from the chief of staff, which stated that the proposition had my approval, although I had not intended to convey that impression. So, after further conference with him, in which I set forth the views of the British and similar views of a British officer of high rank, given me in confidence, General Bliss agreed with me, and we were assured before Mr. Lloyd George in full accord. My views were then fully set forth and were afterward declared by Mr. Lloyd George to be entirely sound.

The supreme war council has been in session since last Tuesday, during which time the whole subject of the conduct of the war has been discussed in its different phases. Generally speaking, the meeting was a success, and the utmost harmony finally prevailed. Personally, I am pleased with the outlook for military co-operation. We are at some disadvantage on the diplomatic side in the council, I stated to Mr. House when he was here that I thought he should be our representative. He undoubtedly has the confidence of the allied governments and would add great strength to the supreme council. I see by the dispatches that Mr. Lane has also been suggested.

General March is returning to America as you requested, but I feel that you need the bestly let me find, so I cheerfully let him go. He is in touch with plans, organization and progress here and understands the situation very well.

It has been said that the winter of 1917-18 was the most severe of the war. The cold was at times so intense as to make it difficult to find shelter in the generally unheated houses, barns and lodges as billets nearly uninhabitable. The gloom of short days and long nights in the isolated and largely depopulated French villages can hardly be described. The snow was unusually heavy in eastern France, and periodically, with consequent mud and slush in the trenches and on the roads, greatly added to the discomfort of the men of all armies.

Training in the open was often impossible for days, and the conditions even the regular supply of necessary food for men in the trenches became a formidable task. Restricted areas in village streets and cleared for daily exercises only by the constant work of troops. The northeastern part of France, while beautiful in summer, is certainly sombre and unattractive in winter.

Our Soldiers Liked Campfires. As to fuel, the natural tendency of all troops, but especially Americans, under such conditions was to use an excessive amount. Nothing delights our soldiers more than to gather around a roaring fire either in or out of doors. But the allowance of firewood was limited and there was no such thing in France as stealing the top rail from fences, as our troops did in the Civil War. Many units had to go into the forests and cut their own wood, and the winter was well known for its severity.

Then, as we have seen, there was also a shortage of heavy winter clothing, although frequent cables early in the fall had called attention to the probability of a deficiency. No doubt the demands were greater than the quartermaster department could meet, but the relatively small number of troops in France going through the winter under actual war conditions should have been given first consideration.

Much of the clothing that we received for our troops looked to be shoddy, and being light and thin of course offered insufficient protection. The deficiencies were met in part by purchases from the British, although our men did not take kindly to the idea of wearing the uniform of another nation, and it was with considerable protest and chagrin that they did so until our own could be supplied. I recall an incident that occurred in one of the premises of infantry which was composed largely of Irish-Americans. This organization had received a consignment of British uniforms with brass buttons which, of course, bore the coat of arms of Great Britain. When the uniforms were issued a wave of opposition swept through the outfit against wearing British buttons.

To pacify the objectors an automobile was sent post haste with American buttons, the changes were made, and the regiment then turned out looking both smart and serene.

The necessity for haste in preparation, as well as the maintenance of morale, made it necessary to carry out our program of training almost regardless of the weather, and even though it entailed some hardships the constant outdoor life kept the troops in good health and hardened them for the work ahead.

To the credit of our officers and men be it said that they generally ignored adverse conditions, and, barring some irritation at French methods and occasionally at our own, they kept at their tasks with commendable determination. Looking back over the different phases of the war I regard that winter, with its difficulties, anxieties and apprehensions for the future as the most trying period of them all.

Tomorrow: Pershing criticizes general staff for hesitating to comply with his recommendations.

Cold Days Made Colder by Lack of Clothes

Winter in the trenches. Lack of heavy clothing made the winter of 1917-18 one long to be remembered by the American soldiers.

HERE'S A PERSHING CONTEST FOR WOMEN OF THE WAR!

Did You Meet General Pershing During the World Conflict?

For the most interesting 200-word accounts of a personal meeting with the commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Forces written by members of the various women's auxiliary organizations

The Constitution is offering the following prizes:

| | | | |
|-----|---------|-----|--------|
| 1st | $15.00 | 3rd | $7.50 |
| 2nd | $10.00 | 4th | $5.00 |

For the next five selected, $2.50 each.

When The Constitution announced its Pershing contest for ex-service men it unintentionally excluded the ladies, so it hastens to make amends with a contest for women exclusively. The men sent in not a few anecdotes which in addition to their extreme interest were literary gems. And now it's up to the ladies. The best of these anecdotes will be published concurrently with General Pershing's "MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR," the great serial now appearing in this paper, which reserves the right to use any of the letters submitted.

So get busy. Write yours today. Remember, only 200 words and on only one side of the paper, please. Type it if possible. State the organization with which you served and where. No account mailed after midnight of Saturday, February 14, can be considered.

COLMAN DOES WELL IN NEWEST PICTURE

"THE DEVIL TO PAY," with Ronald Colman and Loretta Young. Sound news, a good story, and a fine picture. The four acts of R. K. O. vaudeville assisted by Joe Bell and the Georgia orchestra and Winston Bullock.

In "The Devil to Pay," Ronald Colman again proves himself quite equal in the portrayal of dashing young Englishmen with a fine disregard for the conventions and a dash with the ladies. In addition to the young Briton's talent the picture is blessed with a smartly foolish script by Frederick Lonsdale. The net result is somewhere in the neighborhood of an hour and a half of almost continuous smiles, chuckles or guffaws, according to your predilections.

The story, with the exception of a twist near the end, is not startlingly new, but the dialogue is part stuff adeptly handled by all hands in the cast. The wastrel son of a solid British lord is brought up short in the midst of a madcap career by falling in love with the beautiful daughter of an aspiring innkeeper maker. The story is a comedy, but the incident in the sudden rupture of her engagement to an ill-bred grand duke. The girl and the younger son forthwith become engaged, and the picture's balance rudely terminated a few hours later when the y. s. is caught by his beloved in the process of saying good-bye to a former fiancee. It all is solved by the fairly novel device alluded to above.

In addition to Colman's gratifying exhibition, some old John Bull, whose name it was our misfortune to miss, performs splendidly as his lordship and a solemn little wire-haired fox terrier is amusing as advisor to the hero.

The stage program is an average affair with Carl Randall and Virginia Watson showing touches of originality and considerable charm in a dance notably offering. They could well dispense with the puns. Sandy Lang offers a pretty skating act. The Honey Boys furnish a little incident of harmony when not shouting too enthusiastically. Bob Robinson is a comedy girl with no voice and no dancing, but she is assisted by Daddy Cunningham, an aged man with considerable vim, vigor and vitality.

MIX FLIES AWAY AS EX-WIFE NEARS

HAVANA, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Spanish language newspapers today credited the sudden departure of Tom Mix, motion picture actor, by airplane yesterday after a week's vacation, to a desire to avoid meeting his divorced wife, who also was here.

Mix rented a plane to fly him to Miami, while his former wife and little daughter sailed here yesterday aboard the steamer California.

Elaborate functions had been planned in Mix's honor.

Jail Near for Woman Who Sought Wealth Left by Glamorous Singer

BY SAM BLEDSOE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Miners in the rough camps of the old west who flung nuggets and bags of gold at the feet of a girl actress built the foundation for a prosaic case that Saturday came before the supreme court for review.

Glamorous Lotta Crabtree was the girl. Mrs. Ida Blankenburg, of Tulsa, Okla., who said she was the daughter of the comedienne, is asking the court to set aside a sentence of six months in jail growing out of that claim.

The gold the rockless miners tossed on a stage made of a few planks as Lotta sang and danced her way from one-night stand to one-night stand, was the legacy of a fortune. It had grown to $4,000,000 when the actress died in Boston in 1924.

Most of the money was left to charity. When the will was offered for probate in Suffolk county, Mrs. Blankenburg appeared and claimed to be Miss Crabtree's daughter.

She did resemble the actress and she had witnesses and faded names scrawled on the fly leaf of a ponderous family Bible to support her assertion.

There was a more formidable list of witnesses on the other side and after extended hearings, the judge of the probate court read a memorandum in open court in July, 1925, which caused everybody to turn toward the woman who looked like Lotta Crabtree.

It said her testimony was false and added she had doctored someone's family Bible to support a fraudulent claim. Blankenburg was arrested in court, charged with contempt and given the jail sentence.

Beaten in her fight for the Crabtree millions, she has been trying to keep out of a Massachusetts jail since but unless the supreme court reverses the decision, or a pardon is issued, its doors are very near. The full bench of the Massachusetts supreme court ruled against her in 1930.

In the meantime, Lotta Crabtree's fortune is being distributed under the terms of her will. She left a trust fund of $2,000,000 for disabled World War veterans and $300,000 for a war on vivisection.

Lotta was the daughter of a book-seller who caught the gold fever and went to California in the early '50s. There is no record that he ever saw a single yellow gleam in a pan of ore, but where he failed with the pick, his daughter succeeded with her feet and voice.

Her triumphal tour through mining towns was the beginning of a career that made her an international favorite.

She saved her money and in 1901 added the last spectacular touch to a dramatic career by retiring at the height of her fame.

SLEUTHS ON TRAIL OF LOST HEIRESS

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Private detectives were enlisted today to assist in the search for Miss Florence Parker, 22-year-old heiress, missing since January 26.

Her mother, Mrs. James MacDonough, of Yonkers, N. Y., said she did not believe Miss Parker had gone alone to Paris or was in Greenwich Village writing a story as friends suspected.

She also discounted rumors that the heiress may have been kidnapped by friends of a burglar who was sent to prison after robbing the McDonough home.

Gasparilla Krewe In Annual Foray On Tampa Today

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Gasparilla and his mystic Krewe of pirates will sail into Tampa tomorrow at noon for their annual invasion of the city and carnival parade, a feature of the South Florida Fair.

Accompanied by a naval destroyer and five coast guard vessels from St. Petersburg, the pirates' armada will sweep into the city under a terrific bombardment. The dirigible defender from Miami and a flock of airplanes will lead the attack.

Demanding surrender of Governor Carlton and Mayor D. B. McKay at the Tampa Bay hotel docks, the buccaners, led by King Gordon Gibbons and Queen Lucile Trice, will go on a triumphal parade through the city. The procession, headed by the University of Florida band, will be made up of more than 75 units. It will disband at the South Florida Fair, where the governor and the mayor will formally hand over the keys to the city.

The pirates will be hosts tomorrow night at a huge street dance and the festivities will continue through Tuesday night, when King Gasparilla XXII and his queen abdicate at an elaborate coronation ball and new rulers are crowned.

Speakers at the forum on Thursday night, in addition to Mr. Darrow, will be Dr. M. Ashby Jones, Quinn O'Brien, noted Chicago attorney, and Rabbi Barnett R. Brickner, of Cleveland. Mr. Darrow will defend agnosticism while the others speak for their own religious beliefs, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish, respectively.

Since the occasion, which will undoubtedly draw huge crowds to the auditorium, may now be reserved at Cable Piano Company. A section has been set aside for colored patrons who may make their reservations at Yates and Milton pharmacy.

DARROW LIKES FOES WITH INTELLIGENCE

Clarence Darrow, one of the four nationally famous debaters who will take part in the religious forum at the auditorium next Thursday, lays down strict rules as to how he will and who he will not debate with.

"I insist on my opponents possessing enough intelligence to make the arguments interesting," he says. "If they have more intelligence than I have, if they beat me at debate, the better. I like a good forensic battle, regardless of the outcome. Above all things I detest talking with anyone whose prejudices have ruined his logical faculties."

Speakers at the forum on Thursday night, in addition to Mr. Darrow, will be Dr. M. Ashby Jones, Quinn O'Brien, noted Chicago attorney, and Rabbi Barnett R. Brickner, of Cleveland. Mr. Darrow will defend agnosticism while the others speak for their own religious beliefs, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish, respectively.

GARBO AT HER BEST IN PICTURE AT FOX

"INSPIRATION" is the name of the newest Garbo picture, playing at the Fox for the rest of the week. "Gems and Jams" is the Fox and Garbo idea on the stage and added attractions include newsreels, the Enrico Lido orchestra and Mel Ruick and Happy Evans.

Men, strong men, go to jail for Greta Garbo and then they break out for her without the slightest thought about having the sentence prolonged for misbehavior.

In "Inspiration," Garbo's latest picture, the glamorous star of "Anna Christie"—in which her native tongue served her so well—speaks more distinctly than in other pictures and acts as well as she ever did in either the silent or the talkies.

Unlike the male attitude—speaking for the run-of-the-mine minority—toward Rudy Vallee, the women like Miss Garbo immensely and in her latest picture she seems to add to the popularity she enjoys with her own sex.

The "inspiration" idea is promoted because, according to the story, the girl Miss Garbo portrays is a big help to artistically minded persons. Playing around with the artists she meets a person practical minded enough to be studying for the occasion, which is at this point that the story begins to move in truly Garbo fashion.

On the stage are Joe and Jane McKenna. Will own, a new kind of Chinese dance, with his fascinating Chinese ukelele; Jean McDonald, a new comedienne who reminds you of the better old ones and the perennially engaging Sunstun beauties—12 in number.

One novel item on the list of added attractions that must not be overlooked in any comprehensive review is the singing of the group of ushers, who step out of their characters as purveyors of politeness into the roles of hostesses of harmony for a few minutes.

It is a bill up to the usual Fox standard. —R. E. POWELL.

DENISHAWN DANCE SEATS GO ON SALE

Seats go on sale this morning at the Erlanger theater box office for the important one-night engagement of Ted Shawn and the Denishawn Dancers, next Wednesday. The world-famous dancing organization comes here on a brief tour of leading cities of the country following new triumphs achieved last summer and fall in Europe and a seasonally successful engagement of four weeks at the Dance Repertory theater in New York.

Mr. Shawn has achieved greater heights of dancing genius than ever before, since his last visit to Atlanta. Pictures taken of him recently, in newly created dances, show a physique that of a boy of 20 or thereabouts.

The principal girl dancer now with the Denishawn organization is Elaine de Kooning, a North Carolina girl, who is acclaimed as one of the coming great stars of the art.

HOW MANY COLDS MAKE AN EPIDEMIC?

THIS is dangerous weather. Raw, chill dampness breeds sickness. Don't neglect your children's colds!

Keep them warm and dry—make them drink lots of water—and at the first sign of a cold use MENTHOLATUM.

Rob it on their chests. Cover it with flannel. For though Mentholum does not stain, the extra warmth speeds up its action.

Then put just a bit of Mentholum in each nostril to clear their heads quickly. It breaks up congestion... soothes sore nose and throat surfaces.

Stop at the nearest drug store—and buy Mentholum now, 30c in tube or jar—a reliable cold-remedy for over 30 years. (50c for large-sized jar.)

FOUR PERSONS HURT IN AUTO COLLISION

Misunderstanding of Signals Causes Accident on Baxley Highway.

BAXLEY, Ga., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Four persons were hurt in a head-on crash of automobiles on a straight stretch of pavement on Federal Highway No. 1, six miles north of here, Sunday night. Officers who investigated said that a misunderstanding of signals was the cause of the accident.

Those hurt: Cecil Dowling, of Jessup, Ga., former secretary of Howard Coffin, fractured right arm. Mrs. Cecil Dowling, fractured knee cap of the right leg. Mrs. Jennigan, Mrs. Dowling's mother, cut on chin and severely bruised. Mrs. C. M. Johnson, of Vidalia, Ga., slight lacerations and bruises. The Rev. C. M. Johnson was driving a car en route from this city to Vidalia and at a crossroads at Corley's filling station, he told officers, the latter reported, that he saw a hand protrude from an approaching car. He thought it was a signal that the car was planning to make a left turn into the crossroad.

In the car with the pastor were his wife and two children, but only Mrs. Johnson appeared to have suffered injuries. Both cars were said to have been running about 35 miles an hour at the time of the collision. The injured are under treatment here, but the Dowlings will return to their home at Jessup.

FLORIDA MAN INJURED AS TRUCK HITS POLE

VALDOSTA, Ga., Feb. 8.—(AP)—W. H. Corbett, 35, of Jasper, Fla., was reported in the condition in a hospital here Sunday night from injuries suffered when his truck struck a telephone pole near Shadybrook Camp, south of Jasper.

Physicians said he suffered serious internal injuries, a broken shoulder and numerous cuts and bruises. Witnesses to the accident said he lost control of the truck as he tried to recover his seat cushion which slipped from under him. He fell beneath a rear wheel and was crushed.

Corbett's wife and other relatives accompanied him here. He had not recovered consciousness Sunday night.

THREE AUTOS IN WRECK ON ROAD NEAR QUITMAN

QUITMAN, Ga., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Three automobiles were smashed in a series of collisions on a foggy road south of here Saturday, but only one man was seriously hurt.

He was Jesse Daniel, driver of a small roadster that collided with a hunk truck. The truck driver escaped with slight hurts. A few minutes later an ambulance drove up to the scene and its occupants saw a third car, driving out of the muck, smash into an embankment to avoid striking the first two and turn somersaults over one of them. The driver of the third machine was Louie McGowan, owner of the ambulance. He and his passengers, returning from a hunt, crawled out of the wreck and the ambulance, which brought them to town.

Savannahian Is Teller In Bank for 47 Years

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Joseph J. Gleason, teller in the Citizens & Southern National bank here, will observe tomorrow his 47th anniversary as a teller. In banks that have occupied the same site in all those years.

He began his long record with the old Southern Bank of the State of Georgia, then under John Flannery as president.

When the Citizens Bank of Savannah merged with this institution 31 years ago, Mr. Gleason continued as teller, its name becoming the Citizens & Southern bank. Recently it has become the Citizens & Southern National bank, one of the largest in the country.

GEORGIA WOMAN SHOT BY MACONITE

MACON, Ga., Feb. 8.—(AP)—A fishing party near here Sunday ended in a shooting affray, which, according to officers, will cost the life of Mrs. Robert White, Twigs county woman, who is in a dying condition at a Macon hospital.

Ray Irby, Macon plumber, member of the fishing party, brought the wounded woman to the hospital. Irby and Robert White, who is alleged to have shot Dick Edmondson, Irby's brother-in-law, were later placed in the Bibb county jail, pending instructions from Twigs county officers.

After bringing the woman to the hospital Irby went to the Bibb county sheriff's office to report the details of the shooting. As he was talking Edmondson entered, only grazed by a bullet.

"Almost every week-end we go down to Twigs county," Irby said. "My father-in-law lives down there, and we fish and hunt in the river swamp. My wife was at his place. There was Raymond Edmondson, and Jim and Dick Edmondson, L. H. Ganner and Mr. and Mrs. Robert White. "Robert White lives there and without provocation he lifted up his shotgun and shot Dick. We tried to get him back to Macon and I had started to get in the boat. Then Mrs. White came running out of their house with a shotgun and said she was going to shoot us. She leveled the gun at me and I shot her. "I did just what any man would have done. It's a pity it had to happen. She fell down and I brought her here. Robert White came with me.

"On the way here he said we wouldn't say anything about it, just say it was an accident, but I told him we couldn't take a woman all shot to pieces to the hospital and say it was an accident."

At the hospital the woman was found to have been shot with a pistol bullet through her chest. Physicians said she could not live. A sheriff's deputy talked to her but was able to gain little information. There was a bruise on her head and she said Irby had struck her.

Funeral services will be held from the home at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Violin Made in 1513 Held by Savannahian

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 8.—(AP) J. B. Winn, of Savannah, is the possessor of an Italian violin more than 400 years old. According to its inscription, it was made in 1513. The inscription also shows that the instrument was made for Antonio Regio and presented to Selvetta Dulce at Venice. The name of the maker, Gaspard DuPre, is also carved on the violin and St. Peter's head is engraved at the top and a number of crosses are cut in the wood under the strings.

SPANS COMPLETED OVER ALTAMAHA RIVER

Bridges 5,714 Feet Long Constructed at Cost of $750,000.

WAYCROSS, Ga., Feb. 8.—H. J. Friedman, engineer for the Waycross highway division, announced Sunday the completion of the nine bridges across the Altamaha river at Doctortown.

The nine bridges are 5,714 feet long or one and one-tenth miles. Into the dirt approaches and fills have gone 618,437 cubic yards of dirt. The cost of constructing the bridges and approaches was approximately $750,000.

The bridges are of crescent timber with steel spans placed on concrete piers. The bridging across the Altamaha river and its swamp constitutes the longest span ever built in Georgia and provides a direct highway from Waycross to Savannah and shortens by many miles the previous distance between the two cities.

On February 17 the state highway board will let a contract for placing a sand clay surface on the 11 miles between Jessup and Ludowice, bridging the bridge fills and approaches.

U. S. V. TO OBSERVE SINKING OF 'MAINE'

The anniversary of the sinking of the battleship Maine will be commemorated by members of the Lee Roosevelt Camp No. 6, United Spanish War Veterans, at a luncheon to be held at the Terrace restaurant in the Kimball House next Sunday. It was voted at a meeting of that body held at the Red Men's Wigwam on Central avenue Sunday afternoon.

Arrangements for the luncheon are in charge of a committee headed by W. M. Hairston, former commander of the camp. He stated Sunday night that Dr. Sam W. Smith has been selected as toastmaster for the occasion and that there will be a number of prominent speakers on the program. Those to be present are James B. Norin, Mayor John S. Cohen, Judge Marcus Beck, William Schley Howard, Judge G. H. Howard and others.

M'ELVEEN MAKES PLEA FOR INDIGENT

Using Paul's exhortation: "Rejoice with them that weep," the Rev. W. T. McElveen preached Sunday morning at the United Congregational church on "Widening Our Sympathies." He said: "There is a sympathetic nerve in almost everybody. Very few can listen to a pathetic story of human need without being conscious of an inward fellow-feeling of feeling. The problem of poverty keenly concerns us now. Practically all the sociologists, the men who have given specially trained minds to the study of human needs, are agreed that the bulk of poverty is created by inhumanity rather than by defects of character or limitations of intelligence. There never was a day when those who were financially blessed should be so sympathetic to the needy men as this day."

VICTIM OF ROBBER IS BADLY WOUNDED

white bandits held him up at his place of business early Sunday morning and took approximately $15.

W. F. Haney, 307 Hayden street, is in Grady hospital, having suffered a severe stab wound in the back, which he told police he received from negro bandits who set upon him in the rear of the 500 block on Decatur street Saturday.

The third Saturday night victim was W. F. Mills, 495 Whitehall street, who reported that he was held up and robbed in Bumstead alley. He was severely slashed in the head but was permitted to go home after receiving emergency treatment at the hospital. Two young negroes, identified by Mills as his assailants, are held by the police.

A fourth victim of Saturday night's outbreak was Miss Jewel Mason, 321 Orange street, who was slashed on the arm by a negro who snatched her purse as she passed an alley Whitehall street. Miss Mason was treated at the hospital and removed to her home.

In addition to the four affairs in which the victims suffered bodily injury, four other robberies, in which business houses were the victims were reported. Three of these were grocery stores and the fourth a restaurant with the total losses amounting $500. Two other pedestrians were held up and robbed but no effort was made to do them injury.

Acting under orders from Chief James L. Beavers the police spent Sunday combing the city for traces of the negroes who wounded McGhie and committed the other offenses. They were without clues save the descriptions furnished by the victims.

Prof. H. A. Hunt Presented Harmon Foundation Award

Georgia Negro Educator Recognized for Efforts To Develop Training Center for Youth.

PROFESSOR H. A. HUNT.

PORT VALLEY, Ga., Feb. 8.—(AP) Professor Henry A. Hunt, 25 years president of Port Valley High and Industrial school for negro youth, was presented with the Harmon foundation award in education for 1930 last Sunday.

The award is presented annually to the negro, who in the opinion of a group of educators, has contributed most during the year to the cause of education in the United States.

Dr. W. W. Alexander, of Atlanta, executive director of the commission on interracial co-operation, pointed out that heretofore the award has been given educators in the college and university field.

"The award to Professor Hunt is significant in that it is a recognition of distinguished service in education of negro masses," said Dr. Alexander.

"This recognition is due in part to the fact that Professor Hunt has striven to believe and has demonstrated that the educational and economic problems of negroes in the black sections of the south can be worked out right at home and not by sending them with a larger institution, he could have worked in sections where the negro population was not so large and where it probably would have been easier to dig in support, but he chose to dig in at the very center of the problem."

Professor Hunt's work has significance not for negroes only, but for the whole of Georgia and the south. A third of the farmers of the state are colored, and no adequate effort to improve Georgia agriculture can leave them out of consideration."

Professor Hunt has built Port Valley school from an obscure beginning to an institution with a physical plant valued at $350,000 and a student body of 500. In addition to academic studies he has provided a school of training along mechanical and agricultural lines and has developed an extension service among negroes of the area.

During his address Dr. Alexander launched into a discussion of the Georgia legislature and the Georgia Negroes are going on as before. "It's just an extra effort to solve Georgia's problem with talk," he commented. "And it probably will get us where we want to go in the end. He talked about depression, but found, he said, that most important things are going on as before."

"I still see baby carriages on the streets," he remarked, "and the schools are still filled with children. The rest of all the talk is to live. What you have in your head and heart matters more than what kind of car you drive."

He paid tribute to Hunt's wife, saying that "Whatever this institution is, it is greatly owing to her."

He said that the institution is usually better than a big one, because it can be dominated by a personality. The thing that we in the United States should be suspicious of is education. How many colleges are there in Georgia that call themselves universities? I'm glad Professor Hunt is not going to leave this university. I'm glad there's one school left."

Back to the legislature, he said "It's awfully difficult to watch the Georgia legislature and still believe in the form of government we have set up, or to watch a debate in the senate and not have misgivings about the federal government."

He predicted that if rural life in the south is hopeless all life in the south is hopeless, and said that "You can't lift up Georgia agriculture without lifting the negroes and the white people at the same time."

Dr. Peyton Jacob, dean of Mercer University, presented Professor Hunt. The whole audience arose with him and remained standing while Dr. Alexander handed him the Harmon medal and a check for $400.

Professor Hunt read his response, expressing appreciation and paying tribute to his wife, who was not present, but to whom he gave credit for much of his achievement.

"I believe the Almighty put two groups of his children together in the south for a purpose. I believe in youth. I suppose every generation has doubted the next, and thought the world was going to the dogs. But we're not going to the dogs."

"I appreciate the Harmon award but I appreciate more the friendship that I know exists in the hearts of the young and old people who have come here today."

The auditorium was crowded. It is a big, handsome hall with a deep Parquet floor in plum-colored velvet. Its hundreds of seats were filled and chairs in the aisles were all taken. Scores of white people were there, and hundreds of negroes occupied the major portion of the floor. Pots of green plants decorated the stage and a clean white cloth with an open-work cross fell from the reader's pedestal.

Negro spirituals were sung during the program.

SIX OTHER NEGRO LEADERS RECOGNIZED FOR WORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The creative work of seven negroes was rewarded today with the William E. Harmon awards for distinguished achievement.

The awards, consisting of a gold medal and a $400 honorarium, went to Hall Johnson in the field of business; James Langston Hughes, literature; Thomas Monroe Campbell, farming and rural life; Charles S. Johnson, science; Henry A. Hunt, education; and Henry C. McDowell, religious service.

Hall Johnson, who lives in New York, won his award for this arrangement of negro spirituals and his original compositions. His choir sings in the current Broadway stage success, "The Green Pastures."

Holsey, connected with Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, described as "the originator of a successfully proven experiment, stores run by negroes for negro trade." He organized a chain of 250 grocery stores, with branches in Dallas, New York, Omaha, Tulsa and other places.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR DEWITT T. DEEN

WAYCROSS, Ga., Feb. 8.—(AP)—The funeral of Dewitt T. Deen, 40, formerly city attorney of Waycross, but for the last nine years a resident of Daytona Beach, Fla., was held here Sunday afternoon.

He was a descendant of Lyman Hill, one of the Georgia signers of the Declaration of Independence. His father was George W. Deen, former senator from this district.

In Florida Mr. Deen opposed Ruth Bryan Owen for the democratic nomination for congress last year.

He is survived by his widow; a brother and two sisters.

Mysterious Illness Kills Cordele Child

CORDELE, Ga., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Physicians are baffled at the strange illness which caused the death of Frank C. Starr, Jr., 9 years of age.

He was sent home from school Friday and a high temperature that developed in a few hours brought on convulsions, which resulted in his death.

CLARKSVILLE FARMER SLAIN IN ARGUMENT

Rex Trotter Sought in Fatal Shooting of Luther Kinney.

CLARKSVILLE, Ga., Feb. 8.—(Special).—Luther Kinney, a farmer living near here, is dead and the sheriff's force is seeking Rex Trotter, a Clarksville resident, as the result of a shooting at a filling station here Saturday night.

Trotter's car was found about eight miles from town Sunday and Sheriff W. G. Willbanks said he believed that Trotter was fleeing in the auto when it broke down and that he continued his flight on foot.

According to Sheriff Willbanks, both men have been arrested on liquor charges. He said they met Saturday night in front of a filling station and renewed an argument of long standing, the argument ending when Trotter pulled out a pistol and shot Kinney.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 8.—(AP)—L. A. Caswell, a winter visitor, has been mulcted of $3,000 by confidence men working the old "race horse bet" racket, police announced today. Caswell said he was approached by a man while seated in a local park. After several days' acquaintance he saw the man "win $40,000 on a horse race" by telephone.

It was necessary for him to go to Macon, Ga., to come to the track. Caswell went with him. There a third man brought what appeared to be $40,000 in currency into the room and offered a "hot tip" on the next race. Caswell's "friend" wanted to bet $50,000, but only had his original $7,000 and his $40,000 winnings. He asked Caswell to go in with him, supplying the other $3,000. Caswell wired here for money, he said.

Manhattan Night

By William Almon Wolf

INSTALLMENT IV.

Peter wasn't at all by way of being one of those ardent and self-sacrificing scientists Paul De Kruyt describes so romantically. He never even thought of devoting his leisure and his comparative wealth to adventurous attempts to conquer some of the unknown regions of the scientific world. Not he. He quit his job as soon as he could get his successor broken in and headed for the fleabpots of Manhattan.

His sister found him an apartment with a roof terrace and a Filipino boy to look after it and him and he acquired a wicked looking and absurdly fast Mercedes roadster for himself. And, so equipped, he set out to make up for lost time.

Plenty of men in Peter's case have ideas like this and he had them as badly as he did. For the truth was that after three months or so of hard, conscientious play he was bored beyond words. He was just as ready to go back to science, his tail between his legs, when he got to know Martha Thayer.

New York, in 10 years, had grown clear away from all he had remembered and missed and longed for during his term of exile. He was, it happened, that rare bird, a born New Yorker.

In the New York of Peter's memories speakings had not taken the place of saloons. Prohibition was still something that people said, with a tolerant laugh, wouldn't come to pass in their time—just as the same people say, nowadays, between drinks, that no one now living will see it repealed. There were still a great many places to which no man thought of taking a nice girl, a girl of his own sort. Peter remembered how, during his last Easter vacation, a crowd had slipped away from Sherry's old place, the one that was a bank now, and gone over to the Palais Royal, on Broadway, which he'd found, on his return, had become a chop suey joint. Paul Whiteman's band had been a brand new sensation there then and that crowd had had a thrilling feeling, especially the girls, that they were doing something exciting and distinctly daring.

When Peter came back he was out of step from the first: the pace was too fast for him. The whole town was strange and new; it was populated by strangers, whose very speech was foreign in his ears. He couldn't grow accustomed to finding young girls he'd seen at midnight, at a debutante party at Pierre's, lined up on stools at a speakeasy bar at 4 a. m., swallowing drink for drink with their boy friends, and he felt as though he were trying to board a moving trolley car that keeps gathering speed and dragging him along as he tries to plant a foot on the ground.

In a queer, confused way he didn't have such a bad time. But he was self-conscious; he was what a psychoanalyst would insist on calling inhibited. People were remarkably nice to him, considering how little he really had, in those early weeks, to contribute to the gaiety of an evening; they were amazingly tolerant of what he himself felt was his dumbness. He had, and accepted, any number of invitations. The trouble was that he didn't know what to do when he arrived.

Most of the men he'd known in school and college were married, naturally. Their wives were very nice to Peter. They asked him to dinner, and took him on, afterward, to parties for most of which, of course, since he'd been away so long, he didn't have cards. But, it seemed to him, people didn't go to parties for their own sake any more, but rather to meet their own crowd and go on somewhere else—Tex Guinan's, or the Jungle Club, or Emma's, or, for that matter, before breakfast, to all three, and half a dozen more like them.

Emma, that year, was usually the last port of call. No one went there much before two, but after that, until dawn, it was crowded, and Peter found the people there more amusing and more agreeable, generally, than in any of the other night clubs.

Emma was a queer place to look at. There were two rooms: one small, and one smaller. The first had a dance floor, and a melancholy, useless orchestra, but they little knew of Emma's who had to stay in there. The bar was the real Emma's.

That was in a tiny, practically air-proof room, with a few tables for those who wanted to sit and talk their glasses on the bar itself, or for themselves on the stools ranged before it. There was a very bad cabaret show in the other room, but Emma herself, who had made something of a sensation in Paris, sang in the bar at intervals, to the accompaniment of a guitar, and she was, people told Peter, better than any one since Florence Mills.

Peter saw all sorts of people there: novelists, playwrights, actors and actresses, once in a while one of the more sophisticated of the Hollywood stars. But mostly there were kids from over Park avenue way, with a fair sprinkling of the younger married crowd. Broadway was only half a block away as the taxis ran, but it might have been in another city; the real Broadway types didn't favor Emma's; probably weren't wanted there.

Peter liked the place, though he couldn't quite say why. He was talking one night to a girl who thought it ought to bore him, trying to explain why it didn't. "Well," he said, "I don't know, Betty! Look at that chap over there, though—the one Emma was talking to. You wouldn't expect to see him here, would you?" This man had been puzzling Peter for half an hour. He was a Jew, about 40 years old, with an inscrutable face and eyes as cold as any Peter had ever seen. Though he was short, he had a big head, and a high forehead that looked all the higher because he was so nearly bald. Mysterious though his eyes were, they weren't unpleasant; they were, in fact, the beautiful, soft brown eyes so many Jews do have, and they took in the room with a sort of tolerant pity. His features were sensitive and finely cut. Betty Rogers looked over at him, and laughed.

"He!" she said. "Why, that's Dr. Zahn—Meyer Zahn, the psychoanalyst. Don't you know him, Peter? He's here a lot. He's very famous, too."

Peter had heard of Dr. Zahn, of course. He was the last word in his own peculiar branch of the medical profession; a pupil of Freud's, a big man. And Peter supposed that a psychoanalyst whose clients included half the discontented wives in New York—of a certain layer, that is, among those able to pay his fees—might very well come to Emma's as a reservoir of clinical experience. Zahn turned, just then, and caught Peter staring at him, and Peter looked away, quickly, just in time to see Martha Thayer for the first time in his life.

It wasn't easy for Peter afterward, even very soon afterward, to recall the impression Martha made on him at that time. He didn't think, at first, of her as being beautiful. She was a sullen, graceful girl; he did think, even then, that she had a distinction, both of mind and body, that no woman in that room could match. It wasn't strange that he didn't see her beauty; she was hiding it, almost deliberately; it couldn't shine through her sullen, brooding look. He was to come to know, later, that her beauty always did depend upon her mood, and her mood, just then, was bitter, and savage, and discontented.

She wore a very plain black evening dress; her wrap was slipping from her shoulders as she walked toward the bar. Her arms and shoulders and hands attracted Peter; they were what drew his eyes, rather than her face. They were lovely; there was a marvelous grace about them. He had a way of judging people by their hands, anyway; he was always enormously influenced in his first quick, instinctive reactions toward new people by the way their hands looked, and how they were used.

Martha's hands weren't dainty, or small, or fragile; they looked as if she could and did use them vigorously. But they were beautiful, shaped, and she had long, sensitive, plastic fingers. She didn't make gestures; the way she employed her hands and her fingers to accentuate what she said was something much subtler and much more delicate than that.

Will Plant Cherry Tree.

At the meeting Tuesday morning of the Uncle Remus Memorial Association plans were made to observe Washington's birthday by planting a Japanese cherry tree on the grounds of the Wren's Nest and to hold a formal service at the March meeting. Mesdames Spencer Atkinson, Banks Whitman, Robert Blackburn and Forrest Barfield were welcomed after an extended absence.

Mrs. Arthur Hays, hostess of the Wren's Nest, reported many visitors, among them being two school groups, and announced that the courtesy of the Wren's Nest is extended to school groups. She presented the name of a new member, Mrs. Lawrence Bradley, who was welcomed into the association. Mrs. H. G. Hastings requested members to collect newspaper items and everything pertaining to Joel Chandler Harris and the Uncle Remus Memorial Association, and turn them over to her to accompany the formal application to place Mr. Harris in the hall of fame.

Mrs. M. Herzberg, director of the Margaret A. Wilson Chapter, C. of C., suggested that the Children of the Confederacy and the Uncle Remus Memorial Association hold an annual open house at the Wren's Nest on the Sunday afternoon nearest December 14, and the Children of the Confederacy will present a program in honor of the occasion. Mrs. Warren White, president of the Atlanta chapter, and vice president of the Uncle Remus Memorial Association, put this in the form of a motion, which carried. Mrs. Arthur Hazard was appointed chairman to co-operate with Mrs. Harry Poole in the work for the blind.

Work will be started immediately on the Dolly Black Black memorial garden at Eggleston Memorial hospital under the auspices of the Cherokee Garden Club, of which Mrs. George Street is president.

Mrs. Walter Holmes is chairman of the committee and the formal landscape garden will feature a pool and grass plot, with roses and perennials planted in the beds. Handsome shrubs will lend an effective note to the arrangement.

Mrs. Cooney Announces Rules For Wild Flower Award

Mrs. R. L. Cooney, honorary president of the Garden Club of Georgia, announces the rules for the wild flower award which she has offered to the individual members of the state organization, who, during the year, grows the greatest variety of wild flowers.

Wild flowers from any part of the country which the member successfully grows should be listed as the contest is not confined to the native flowers of Georgia, and flowers grown in both the city garden and the larger country place. The award will be given for the greatest variety, not the greatest number, so as to equalize the chances of the contestants of large and small places. Competitors must be members of garden clubs that are member clubs of the Garden Club of Georgia, or members at large of the Garden Club of Georgia. Lists must be sent through the member's club to Mrs. R. L. Cooney, 1810 Ponce de Leon avenue, Atlanta, two weeks before the annual convention, so Mrs. Cooney's committee will have time to judge them. The convention will be held in Savannah in April, the exact date to be announced shortly.

Furniture prices are down to the lowest price level in many years. Economic pressure caused many factories to sell furniture at less than cost of manufacture. Needless to say, this condition will not last. No business can continue without a profit. Prices must advance. Business leaders and economists are agreed that the bottom has been reached. Wholesale prices will begin to go up. Retail prices must go up accordingly. Don't be one of those who will say later on, "I am sorry I didn't buy my furniture when prices were down." Buy now. Appreciation of Music.

Aesthetic committee of Atlanta Music Club will give a program of musical numbers at the Buckhead theater this evening at 8 o'clock. Miss Julia Oliver Eckford, chairman, has arranged a series of musical programs being sponsored by the aesthetic committee in various localities throughout the city, the object being the development of a keener appreciation of music.

Musical Arts trio, composed of Geraldine Edgar Singler, violinist; Patricia Warren Loewner, cellist; and Isabelle Bryan, pianist, will play a group including "Tchaikovsky's 'Chanson sans Paroles,'" "Symphonies," by Kreisler, and "Hungarian Dance No. 5," by Brahms. Miss Lydia Wheeler, well known soprano, will sing a group of modern songs, and Bob Wheeler, baritone, will render solos, accompanied by Miss Helen Battle.

A group from the Washington Seminary Glee Club will sing and dance the minuet from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," and those taking part will be Misses Louisa Roberts, Judy King, Mary Seymour Ward, Kate Jenkins, Belle Scott Meador, Joyce Smith, Jasmine Ward, Betty Hay, Eulalie Harris, Nesbit Leconte, Caroline Dunvan, Rosebud Leide, Margaret McCarty, Peggy Marchmont, Amelia La Hatte, Adele Helmar and Charlotte Beilfuss.

Girls Who Slump

Thousands of girls who drag themselves around certain days of every month! Painful periods that need not be painful—that are not—until to those who know of Midol. These wonderful tablets make monthly periods an incident. No pain, not even discomfort when you have learned to depend on Midol; the women who used to have the hardest time have found this to be true.

This marvelous product is the work of specialists. It is not a narcotic, but it stops the pain just the same in five to seven minutes. And if you take it in time, the pain never even starts. Every drug store has Midol in trim metal packet case for fifty cents, so it is folly to suffer! Many have found Midol the quickest relief for headaches, neuralgia, neuritis, and other pain. (adv.)

Former Atlantan and Little Son

Mrs. James B. Little and young son, James B. Little, Jr., of Gadsden, Ala., who are frequent visitors to Atlanta. With her young son she will arrive in the early spring for a visit here with friends and will be honored at a series of social gayeties.

Mrs. Allcorn Stresses Educational Value of Junior League Marionettes

Mrs. Frank J. Allcorn, Jr., prominent member of the Atlanta Junior League and of the Spring Street Parent-Teacher Association, stresses the educational value of the Junior League marionettes to be presented this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Spring Street school under the auspices of the P. T. A. of this school.

"From the instant the curtain rises on Uncle Remus, with his white wool, his little 'spees,' with the little boy listening at his feet, the children are held spellbound," states Mrs. Allcorn. "Mrs. Allcorn says that children of all ages need clean, wholesome, educational entertainments with all the fun that children love. 'Children should know the Uncle Remus stories, should grow up with them and the easiest way for the stories to be learned is to see the marionettes, talking, singing, dancing and 'sassing.' Just as Uncle Remus, himself, says they should do," states this Atlantan.

Mrs. Allcorn made the Uncle Remus that is in the marionettes. The price of admission is 25 cents, payable at the door. No tickets will be issued. That the children may have a happy time during the 20 minutes' performance, they will sing between acts. While the performance is open to the public, boys and girls who have finished at Spring Street school and are in junior and high schools are invited with all others to be present and to sing with the Spring Street children their school songs of old days. "Let fathers, mothers and children, boys and girls get together at Spring Street school and have a great time Monday afternoon," says Mrs. Allcorn.

LaGrange College

LAGRANGE, Ga., Feb. 7.—Junior class of LaGrange College, under the leadership of Miss Allen Boyle, of East Point, won first prize at the stunt night sponsored by the seniors, Monday evening in the college auditorium. The juniors gave a "Burlesque on a Moving Picture," presenting fashion revues; advertisements; selected short subjects; a news reel, and the picture, "Will Sell of the Primitives, or Her Final Sacrifice." Senior class gave "The Ladies Aid of Hickville." The sophomore, "The Romance of Henry Lee and Charlie M. Boy," the freshmen, "An Old Sweetheart of Mine." Students recital of the new semester was given Wednesday and the following featured numbers: Misses Frankie Cole, Rome; Mable White, Chelvey; Frances Benton, Jefferson; Louise Heakes, Canon; Jean Thompson, LaGrange; Nancy Holleran, LaGrange; Mary Nell Butler, LaGrange, and Master Hall Thompson, LaGrange.

Misses Helen Robertson, Hartwell; Lois Jones, Brunswick; Mary Walker, Atlanta, entertained the Fresh Club Monday, and on the program were: Misses Evelyn Cooper, Norcross; Mable Henkle, East Point; Aurelia Adams, Danielville; Katherine Glaze, Jane Frutier, LaGrange.

Rich and Mrs. Thomas Means.

RIVERSIDE CHURCH FORMALLY OPENED

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(P)—The nonsectarian Riverside church, pulpit of the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick and place of worship of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and his family, was dedicated today with a warning by its pastor that civilization cannot be sustained without the message which the church of God is trying to convey.

A congregation of 2,400 persons filled the auditorium and galleries of the $4,000,000 Gothic edifice high above the Hudson beside Grant's tomb, and hundreds more heard the services by amplifiers in other rooms of the church or stood outside on snowy Riverside drive hoping in vain to enter.

Among the 2,400 was Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., whose beneficence helped largely to build the church—the third which the congregation of Dr. Fosdick has occupied in the last nine years in an effort to obtain for him a place of worship simple for the throng which seek to hear him. The church was opened for worship October 5.

Two abreast outside the church doors and down Riverside drive, would-be worshippers have stood in line each Sunday morning waiting for entrance; some doubtless drawn by the note and newness of the building which seek to hear him. The church was opened for worship October 5.

BEAUTY FASHIONS

A PLEASING DAYTIME FROCK.

7084. Plaits and a closing shaped in pointed outline are interesting features of this design. The waist is semi-fitted and finished with a narrow shawl collar. A small vestee squares the "V" neck. The skirt portions, arranged in broad double box plait effect in front and back, are joined to the waist in split curve outline. A fitted sleeve and neat upturned cuff, finishes this design. Light weight woolen or silk tweed or crepe in plaid or printed weaves, also linen and abutting are suggested for this style.

Designed in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure, it will require 4 5/8 yards of 39-inch material for a 38-inch size. Cuffs, collar and vestee of contrasting material will require 5-8 yard, 39 inches wide, cut crosswise. The width of the dress at the lower edge with plaits extended is 2 1/8 yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

RAINS AID IN FIGHT AGAINST FOREST FIRES

MARION, N. C., Feb. 8.—(P)—Aided by light and steady rains that fell during the night, rangers today brought under control fires that have burned over thousands of acres of virgin forests in this mountainous country.

With the flames checked authorities sought reasons for the several blazes.

T. A. Wilson, ranger in the government forest service, said he believed a few fires had been set by unemployed persons, with a view to obtaining work fighting them.

3 AMERICANS EXPECTED TO SURVIVE ACCIDENT

CRISTOBAL, C. Z., Feb. 8.—(P)—Three Americans who were injured last night in the crash of a Pan-American Grace amphibian plane here will recover.

N. D. Voss, of Pensacola, Fla., radio operator, suffered a broken shoulder and broken ankle while L. Claude, of Annapolis, Md., the pilot, and Ira Unsworth, of Missouri, mechanic, were cut and bruised. They are in Cristobal hospital.

Y.W.C.A. Vesper Services To Be Led by Columbia Theolog Students

The vesper services which are arranged weekly for the girls who live at the Y. W. C. A. residence, 82 Baker street, N. W., will be led Monday evening by students from the Columbia Theological Seminary. Rev. H. B. Dickson, who is a graduate of the Presbyterian College, Clinton, N. C., and who is now a junior at Columbia, will be in charge of the program and will introduce Rev. J. B. Nelson, formerly of the Louisville, Ky., seminary, who will bring an interesting and helpful message.

The residence choral club will sing several sacred songs and as an added feature of the program, Miss Gertrude Thompson will play two selections on the violin, accompanied at the piano by Miss Grace Smith. The service will begin promptly at 7 o'clock, and friends of the residence and of the Y. W. C. A. are cordially invited to attend.

The residence basketball team has been enjoying marked success in the Blue Triangle league, which is composed of teams from the Y. W. C. A., Sears and Roebuck, Davidson-Paxon, Lutheran church, Southern Bell Telephone Company, Coca-Cola and the Rainbow Club. Miss Carrington Owen, swimming instructor of the "Y" is the coach and Miss Blanche Ingram is captain. The players are Misses Ingram, Gertrude Thompson, Reba Underwood, Alma McGill, Agnes Thompson, Agnes Humphrey and Velma Brook.

With the election of new members of the board of directors and the selection of new committee members, Mrs. Robert M. Crumley, chairman of the residence committee and first vice president of the board, announces the following women have volunteered their services to assist with residence affairs, Misses Frank West, W. H. Flowers, J. Murchison Thomas, Arthur Chase, Paul Johnson, E. C. Kontz, W. C. Royer, E. V. Carter, N. C. Harrison, Paul Hildrich, F. O. Walsh and T. Guy Woolford. A committee meeting was held Thursday morning at 82 Baker street, N. W., to discuss plans for making improve-

Friends Never Knew Her Hair Was Gray

Stay young, my friends. Above all, why let your hair get gray, when there's a simple way to lose gray hair overnight and in a few days have beautiful, dark hair. It's a brew of common sage tea properly blended with sulphur. An old recipe women used to steep on the back of the stove. Now improved and sold by all druggists for 75c a bottle. Weyla's Sage & Sulphur. Use it following directions and very soon it will restore your hair to its original coloring, so evenly, so naturally nobody'll ever know. (adv.)

Suppose you send this suit: here's how we dry clean it---

To show the extra value you get in dry cleaning at these plants, here's an actual example: It's a black and white sharkskin tweed suit. The skirt is slightly gored, and the jacket worn over a blouse of washable silk. These are the actual processes in our super-fine dry cleaning:

- 1 A courteous route man calls for the suit promptly, on your phone call.
- 2 A master dry cleaner examines the garment—studies the fabric and cut; notes any special soiled spots. He prescribes the exact method of caring for this suit.
- 3 The suit is carefully brushed to remove surface dust from seams and hem. Pockets are turned inside out.
- 4 First comes a thorough all-over cleansing. It is placed in a cylindrical vessel, made of a metal smooth as glass and rust-proof. Streams of fresh cleansing-fluid cascade over it, while the vessel rocks from side to side. Fresh cleansing-fluid continues to flow in gently, at the same time being carried away through an outlet. The suit is swished back and forth in this bath of continually fresh fluid till every bit of soil is washed away. We are particular that only fresh, crystal-clear cleansing-fluid enters the vessel, so the garments will be made clean as clean can be.
- 5 The white blouse is cleaned in a separate vessel reserved for silk pieces. It, too, comes out sparkling with cleanliness.
- 6 Coat, skirt and blouse are hung in an "airing room" specially built to remove odors from garments. Currents of pure, fresh air blow through this chamber, leaving the garments sweet and fresh.
- 7 The suit goes to an expert craftsman who looks for stains or spots that may still cling to the fabric. He cleans such places carefully, either on coat, skirt or blouse.
- 8 The suit goes to finishing department, where it is smoothed out on steam presses specially shaped to fit the type of garment. The coat is shaped and molded to fit snugly. The blouse is pressed to satin smoothness.
- 9 A master dry cleaner inspects the garments carefully. He makes sure every detail is finished to a queen's taste before he passes the garment for delivery.
- 10 The suit is placed on a hanger padded with tissue paper. Sleeves are filled with tissue to hold their shape—over all goes a fresh paper covering to keep the garment in perfect trim. Blouse is packed separately.
- 11 Your route man brings the suit to your door. You're pleased to see it once more so fresh, so clean—almost like new.

The cost for such superfine work is low. Suit alone . . . $1.00

Wildcats, Last of Unbeaten Quintets, Lead Conference Race Coach Alexander Changes Tech Offense for 1931 Grid Campaign

WILDCATS TAKE LEAD ON COURTS OF CONFERENCE

Alabama and Maryland
Lose Perfect Records
During Week.

By Dillon Graham,
Associated Press Sports Writer.
Kentucky leads the Southern conference cage race today with five victories, but the laurels for the week's play go to Tennessee and Virginia for eliminating Alabama and Maryland from the unbeaten group, which now includes only the wildcats.
After six successive defeats by narrow margins, the Volunteers came back to give Alabama, the defending champion, its first loss in two years, 26 to 24. Both teams registered nine field goals but the Vols slipped in two more foul shots than the Crimson.

Gus Tobell's Virginia Cavaliers were too fast for Maryland and won 34 to 31, but the Old Lineers thumped
Washington & Lee the next night, 28 to 17, while Virginia lost two in a row to Duke, 31 to 43, and North Carolina, 24 to 28.

TEST AHEAD.
Of the three teams starting the week with perfect records, Kentucky was the only one able to maintain the pace. The Lexington Whites downed Washington & Lee, 23 to 18, in their single game. Kentucky has its real test this week with Georgia Tech and Georgia alone.

Georgia set the victory mark for the period with four wins. The Buldogs, who have 12 triumphs against a lone defeat, beat Clemson, 31 to 21, South Carolina, 27 to 21, and Florida twice, 38 to 23 and 33 to 32. The last game found the Alligators leading, 24 to 12, at the half but Georgia cut loose with a half barrage which was enough to win.

Vanderbilt beat Sewanee, 52 to 32, and Georgia Tech, 45 to 32, while Sewanee also lost, 30 to 20, to Alabama, 25 to 31. In addition to its victory over Virginia, North Carolina beat V. P. I., 30 to 24, and V.
M. I., 42 to 13, but lost a "big five" state game to North Carolina State, 20 to 23. N. C. State also beaten Duke, 26 to 23.

TIGERS CLIMB.
Auburn improved its rating by trouncing Tulane twice, 44 to 32 and 31 to 35, while V. M. I. won its first conference game of the year from V. P. I. last night, 31 to 20.
In non-conference contests, Loyola, of Baltimore, beat Washington & Lee, 24 to 32; Duke downed Mississippi State Teachers' College, 46 to 37; Furman beat South Carolina, 21 to 11.

U. S. Sports Leaders Invited to Germany

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Theodore Lewald, president of the German Olympic committee, today cabled invitations to American sports leaders to visit Germany and its playgrounds for sports events to be held in various cities from July 6 to July 27.

The invitations were sent to Avery Brundage, Gustavus T. Kirby and Frederick Rubien, among others.

King Tut and Petrolle Sign for Return Bout

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 8.—(AP)— Ernie Fliegel, manager of King Tut, of Minneapolis, announced today that he had accepted from Tom McCarrie, matchmaker for Madison Square Garden, for a return fight with Billy Petrolle, of Fargo, N. D., in New York, February 27.

The fight will be the sixth between the two. In their last appearance in the ring Tut knocked out the Fargo Express in 84 seconds in a bout held Monday in St. Paul.

Bert Niehoff, new manager of the Chattanooga Lookouts, has made no predictions as to where his club will finish in the 1931 race but he has come forward with one definite forecast.

Bert says Ray Treadaway, the young man who played third base for the Lookouts last year and is back again for another season, is playing his last year in the minors. Treadaway, says Bert, will go up to the majors this fall as soon as the Southern campaign is over. And he will go to stay.

Treadaway was tried in the outfield and moved in to third base in an emergency last season. He hit .369. He showed a fine pair of hands and a steel arm. He lacks the polish of a great third sacker but he has the makings.

Bert plans to polish up Treadaway's play and keep him at the hot corner all year. He intends to show him the ins and outs of the job and have him ready for a real trial next fall. Bert was a smart third baseman in his day and is the man to do it.

MADE GILBERT GOOD.
One of Bert Niehoff's third base graduates is making good now in the majors. I refer to Walter Gilbert, who is about to begin his third season at third base for the Brooklyn Robins.

They call Gilbert "The Old Reliable" in spite of the fact that he is just 28 years old. He is steady as a clock, never spectacular, never in a slump. Gilbert always hits around .300. He thinks quickly in a pinch. He is rugged and never out of condition.

Gilbert was bought by the Yankees in 1925 when Joe Dugan's trick knee began acting up. But Joe's knee got better so Gilbert was sent along to Atlanta.

Niehoff, then managing the Crackers, took Gilbert under his wing and gave him the pointers that changed him from a prospect to a star.

And Bert sees in Ray Treadaway another Gilbert—the same type fielder, the same sort of intelligent man to fit into a system of attack and defense, the same sort of determined player and perhaps a better hitter.

DO TELL!
The story goes that a press agent for a well-known brand of cigaret sought a bevy of Atlanta young ladies to make a blindfold test.

A dozen or more of the most charming of the debutante set met at the place appointed. The photographers were there with cameras and flash lamps. The cigarets were laid out in neat piles. The blindfolds were ready.

But not a one of the young ladies smoked. That's the story and I'll stick to it although my informant said she knew better.

IN CASH.
The always reliable Associated Press quoted Captain Campbell as saying that he would try to break 300 miles an hour if "a rich millionaire" could be found to finance the attempt.

This probably should have been edited to read "a rich millionaire who has plenty of money."

NO WONDER BOB'S HAPPY.
Bob Smith, the Atlanta boy who pitches now for the Chicago Cubs, leaves Wednesday to join his squad and proceed to Catalina Island for training. Bob has gotten in shape already at Bill Daly's health club.

Bob scarcely can contain himself. After years of being buried alive with the Boston Braves he has a break to get out in the sunshine with a real ball club. Naturally he is enthusiastic over his own, the Cubs', and baseball's prospects.

LIKE AUTUMN LEAVES.
Kentucky, with five victories and no defeats in conference basketball, is left alone in front.

Alabama had run its string of victories to eight but finally was bumped off. Georgia won eight times before losing one. Maryland also was dumped out of the undefeated class last week.

SMITHIE HEADS PLAN TO FIGHT DISTRICT MOVE

Suspension From Association Called 'Grave Injustice' by Cheney.

By Roy White.
Tech High's suspension from the Fifth District Association will be appealed to the executive committee of the Georgia High School Association, W. O. Cheney, principal of Tech High, stated Sunday night. Tech High and Boys' High were dropped from the district at an executive committee meeting Saturday morning.

"A grave injustice has been done Tech High. We were dropped without a hearing by a committee which had prejudice vote, and an appeal is being considered pending an official notice of the suspension. Tech High attempted to appeal both the G. I. A. A. and the state association and this is what we get," Cheney said.

Tech High resigned from the G. I. A. A., effective February 24, and informed both the district and state association officers that a B team would be entered in the fifth district basketball tournament.

In support of his projected appeal Cheney said that he had letters from both J. S. Stewart, president of the state association, and M. C. Bishop, president of the Fifth District Association, commending Tech High for withdrawing from the G. I. A. A. and pledging support to the district events thereafter.

Cheney also pointed out some inconsistency on the part of district officials through a bulletin, issued recently, which states, in part: "Any school which belongs to the G. I. A. A. will not be allowed to participate in any scholastic or athletic event sponsored by the Fifth District Association. This does not apply to the schools of the N. G. I. C. All schools who play G. I. A. A. schools will be suspended for a period of one year."

"More than a dozen members of the various districts of the state association played members of the G. I. A. A.
in fall in football, which was a violation of the state constitution. Our team played six G. I. A. A. teams and is still in good standing in the district," Cheney said.

Harvey-Dundee Go Tops Ring Program

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(AP)—A return match in Madison Square Garden between Len Harvey, British middleweight champion, and Vince Dundee, of the Baltimore Orioles, heads the national boxing schedule
this week.

Harvey, who dropped a decision to Dundee in his first American appearance, will try to wipe out that defeat in the Garden Friday night.

The Briton had Dundee on the floor the last time but the Baltimore Ir-ishman, younger brother of Joe Dundee, former welterweight champion, got up and roughed his way to a decision.
Harvey again is the betting choice.

Lacrosse Officials Lay Olympic Plans

BALTIMORE, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Lac-tives laid plans here today for the 1932 Olympic games at Los Angeles and the Canadian-American amateur championship series next June and decided against all-star teams for both events.

The United States Olympic team will be chosen as a unit. It was de-

Petersburg Trials Set To Open Today

PETERSBURG, Va., Feb. 8.—(AP)— Pairings were announced tonight for the national amateur championship field trials which will open at Camp Lee tomorrow. The entry list of 1931 is the largest in the history of this event, which is limited to dogs that have qualified by winning an event sponsored by the organization affiliated with the National Amateur Field Trials Association.

It is stated also that the entry list equals that for the Grand Junction open field trials, held at Grant Junction, Tenn., two weeks ago, and that the leading dogs from eastern states will compete.

There will be a surplus of players. But no one knows if there will be surplus of good ball players. Unskilled labor will not aid the owners. Not every player can play ball.

Coast League Sluggers Enter 'Big Top'

Shopping about for likely material this season, the big league teams have been thinking of base hits and paying attention to the makers of such. Two Coast league lads, falling into this classification, are destined to work on the big-time lots this summer as a result. Both Ernest Lombardi, property of the Brooklyn Robins, and Russ Ar-let, owned by the Philadelphia National league club, are expected to make the grade.

Crackers Join Fight On Player Holdouts

Baseball Owners Make Same Threats Every Year But Always Break Ranks.

By Ralph McGill.
CRACKER baseball contracts will go into the mails this afternoon or tomorrow.

And then will follow a week of gnawing nails while club officials await the answers from the athletes who will make up the 1931 enterprise which John Dobbins will whip up into the race for the $15 piece of bunting which John D. Martin offers as a reward for the winner.

This is the big question mark spring. Baseball salaries have been put in the steam baths this winter and emerged not nearly so fat as in years past. This move is one which the major leagues started and which the minors followed. Baseball salaries, which had grown in the minors to as much as $1,000 per month, in some cases, were over-emphasized, said the baseball people. The attack on over-emphasis seems to have been general.

BASEBALL owners declare that they are not at all concerned over the matter. The Cracker office recently saw the executive officers go into a huddle and write a new law into the by-laws. It is that no Cracker hold-out will be played with longer than five days.

"Holdouts will receive scant consideration," said R. J. Spiller, business manager, expressing the opinion of the owners. "We will give them five days to come to terms. If they do not within that time they will be suspended from baseball."

The owners, from the major leagues on down, seem to think that there will be a surplus of unemployed baseball players this spring. There likely will. Especially in the minors where a few small leagues show signs of folding up.

SOUNDS GOOD.
THIS IS all well enough. It sounds convincing in February. But it may not be so convincing in March.
Baseball owners are notoriously inconsistent. There are always a few who break over, forget the agreements and spend cash like a drunken sailor when they see a chance to strengthen their clubs with a real ball player.

There will be a surplus of players. But no one knows if there will be surplus of good ball players. Unskilled labor will not aid the owners. Not every player
can play ball.

There has always been a surplus of ball players. The good ones are gobbled up each year. There has never

Gamecock To Stay In Own Back Yard

SPRING DRILL BEGINS TODAY IN ROSE BOWL

Forward and Lateral Passes Stressed in New Offensive Set.

By Ed Danforth.
W. A. Alexander rolls up his sleeves today to begin his twelfth season as head football coach at Georgia Tech. He has a rebuilt coaching staff to help him, 14 letter winners from last year's campaign, and six varsity positions to fill.

And once again, Coach Alexander has made certain changes in his offense that will be taught at the Rose Bowl for the first time. The changes, perhaps, will not be visible to the naked eye of the spectator, but yet these alterations will appear radical in the estimation of scouts. Just another job of work has been cut out for the young men from enemy camps who come over to scout the Yellow Jackets next fall.

MANY CONFERENCE.
For the past few weeks Coach
Alexander has been in daily conferences with his new coaching staff, Canon of Notre Dame fame, and with Captain H. W. Robinson, his end coach. He has outlined to them the new system. Diagrams of the rearranged sets also have been transmitted to Bobby Dodd, the Tennessee star, who is to come on later to tutor Tech's backfield men.

Without going into detail about the revised system it is fair to say that Coach Alexander plans to start early in developing the attack. It will stress forward and lateral passes more than ever. Tech's game will be opened up considerably this year as to attack, and, in harmony therewith, line play will be changed somewhat.

Coach Alexander long has been a devotee of the Percy Haughton principle of building the attack to suit the material, rather than trying to make the material fit into a set scheme of play. This tendency was first shown when he discarded the old Heisman jump shift and put in a balanced line with the "reversed quarterback." After two years of this system, Coach Alexander found a shortage of linemen at the Flats and switched to a variation of the Warner system which was not unlike that employed by Alabama.
This system was used for two years.

USES MATERIAL.
The new plan is designed to utilize fully the limited number of fast strong linemen, the few fast backs in prospect. The changes, as said, will not bother the spectator, but it will give the scouts a bit of work to do.

Graduation of Earl Dunlap leaves a backfield gap at quarterback, Jones, Marec, Brooks, Edwards, and Speer are gone from the line and Holt, tackle, and Law, guard, are lost from the list of reserves.

The 14 lettermen, together with a mob coming up from the Grey Devil last year and from the undeflected freshman team of Coach Clay's, will make a sizeable crew to work with.

One drill a day will be held for about six weeks. An extra session will be held for backfield men after Bobby Dodd finishes his basketball at Tennessee and arranges a transfer to Tech.

Women Name Links For Dixie Title Meet

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va., Feb. 8.— (UP)—The Women's Southern Golf Association today named the Princess Anne Country Club and the Cavalier
Golf and Country Club of Virginia Beach, as the places for the twentieth annual women's southern championship tournament to be held during the week of June 8.

The association hopes to make the tournament a reunion of all players now living who ever have played in previous southern women's tournaments.

The Chattanooga five took the lead at the outstart and were never headed.

Nurmi Plans Early Return To Tracks

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 8.
(UP)—Paavo Nurmi, Finnish Olympic star, will return to active track competition this summer. Nurmi announced today that he was planning a tour through southern Europe as a training campaign for the 1932 Olympic games at Los Angeles.

Nurmi denied reports that he was planning to make his future home in the United States, although he recently expressed a desire to live in a warmer climate while training for distance races. "The tour through southern Europe will enable me to get the proper training for the Olympics," Nurmi said. "I will go to America far enough in advance to become properly acclimated for the 1932 Olympics."

HURRICANES BOW. ALHAMBRA, Cal., Feb. 8.—(UP)— A goal in the last 30 seconds of play gave the Argentine polo team a 9-to-8 victory over Laddie Sanford's Hurri- cane in the opening match of the Pacific coast open high goal tourna- ment at Midway Country Club to- day.

Prep Courtmen Enter Stretch in Drive To Tournament Program

PURPLE-SMITHIE TILT IS FEATURE OF HEAVY SLATE

Big Three To Take Action on Schedule This Week.

By Roy White.

With the first of a series of annual tournaments only a week off, Atlanta prep basketball teams will swing into the final stretch of the race this week with 15 games scheduled. The first of the week's games will be played Tuesday afternoon, with a trio of tilts scheduled.

Tech High and Boys' High are slated to renew their rivalry Wednesday afternoon on the Henry Grady court in the feature of a Big Three double-header. It will be the ninth round of the schedule. In the B game Boys' High is scheduled to play G. M. A. as the preliminary.

Since Boys' High and Tech High were suspended from the Fifth District Association Saturday morning and G. M. A. was warned not to play either of the suspended teams or become ineligible, it is doubtful if the schedule will be resumed.

Some action on whether or not the Big Three will be permitted to continue will be taken early this week, according to rumors about Saturday night.

In the executive committee of the fifth district Saturday, G. M. A. was ruled eligible to participate in any events of the district, while Tech High and Boys' High were both dropped.

Boys' High is at present leading the league with four victories and no defeats and is also at the top in the standing of the G. I. A. A. with seven victories and one defeat, suffered Friday in Columbus.

Deatur has a commanding lead in the North Georgia Interscholastic conference with seven victories and no defeats. The DeKalb county team meets Commercial and Marietta during the week but should rule a favorite in both games.

Artillery Polo Four Wins at Savannah

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 5.—(AP)—The fast polo team of the 118th field artillery, the Free Booters, of Georgia into camp this afternoon by a score of 9 goals to 1 before a large gallery.

The Artillery team started out in the first chukker two goals and kept shooting well throughout the game. The Free Booters scored their lone goal in the fourth chukker.

Fishwick Golf Party Now in St. Augustine

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 5.—(AP)—A group of women golfers from the British Isles headed by Miss Diana Fishwick, British women's champion, arrived here today from New York. They will compete in three championships in Florida during the next four weeks.

Miss Fishwick will receive her first test on an American course in the championship of Florida, which will be staged at the Palm Beach Country Club links February 16 to 20. The second will be the south Atlantic championship at Orlando Beach February 24 to 28 and the last will be the Florida east coast championship on the St. Augustine links March 3 to 7.

SAUER NAMED BARTUSH'S SUB IN KAHN MATCH

Bill Hurt; Picking of "Bronze Man" Helps
Card.

Pete Sauer, the wrestler most feared by Jim London, world's champion, will meet Ghafoor Khan here Wednesday night in the feature match of the evening.

Sauer, who substitutes for Bill Bartush, raised the match to one of even more importance. Bartush was forced to cancel a match last week because of an infected leg wound received in a recent bout. He was not in the best shape this week, according to reports from New York and Matchmaker Henry Weber promptly sought another man and obtained Sauer.

Sauer is one of the most magnificent athletes in sport today. Mat fans have marveled at the physical perfection of Jim London, "The Grecian Apollo," will see a much finer looking athlete in Sauer, "The Bronze Man."

Sauer, although billed in some cities as "The German Oak," is really an American. He was born on the west coast and makes his home there. He is greatly in demand and Atlanta, which has not seen Sauer in months, will welcome his return.

Ghafoor Khan, who would have been a slight favorite over Bill Bartush, will be the underdog in the bout with Sauer. Khan will hardly defeat the great piece of wrestling machinery that Sauer has developed into because he lacks the catch-as-catch-can experience, but he will give Sauer the best match he has ever had in an Atlanta ring.

In the semi-windup Paul Jones will meet Charley Lehman, the Stumped Bull from Texas. Lehman went down Nick Velocoff last week to win after more than 30 minutes of intense wrestling. He will face a much more difficult test in Jones. Lehman asked for a main event match, but was given Jones as another trial. The card, with Sauer and Khan in the main event and the ever-popular Jones meeting Lehman as a semi-windup, is what the theatre critics would call a "smash hit." Khan was a great card by himself. Matched with Sauer he becomes even greater. Tickets will be on sale at the Candler building soda fountain and at the Piedmont Hatters. Ladies will be admitted to any seat for one dollar.

THE SPORTLIGHT By Krauthamer Rice

THE GOLFER'S MELODY.
Hear the song the duffer sings
Coming to the green;
Hear the melody that rings
Through the sunny skeen;
Hear the merry words that spin
As the final top rolls in—CHORUS.

Three little putts—
What a chance I had to break 80 for my caddy's sake,
But I had to go and take
Three little putts;
Three little putts—
Every time I saw the cup
Something in my throat came up,
And I turned a yellow pup—
Three little putts.

Rough Parking.

THEY ARE HAVING a hard time parking a new face in the heavyweight set. Something always happens. Schaaf beats Loughran, Max Baer gives Schaaf a great battle, and then Loughran ties Baer into more knots than ten sailors could untie in a month.

Baer looked to be a year away against Schaaf. He looked to be two years away against Loughran, and perhaps a few weeks of the side. It also goes to show how styles make a boxing match or a fight. Baer and Schaaf had the styles that made a slashing evening all the way.

But where Schaaf can get by Tommy's poking, stabbing left, Baer can't. At least he couldn't. He found a left glove at the tip end of his nose, in his mouth or eyes, at every move he tried to make. And you can't do much with a glove in your face some two minutes and fifty seconds of each three-minute round.

A Place for Skill.

IT REMAINED for Loughran to prove there is still a big place for skill in an age that demands the wallop and the punch. Baer knew that Loughran couldn't hurt him. He also knew that one or two of the punches he threw at Tommy might win the fight.

He had eighteen pounds advantage in weight; he had youth, strength and the heavier artillery. But this combination wasn't enough to make

STRIB TO HELP RISKO IN DRILL FOR HIS FIGHT

Georgian To Train Johnny for Bout With Walker.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 5.—(UP)—W. L. (Young) Stribling, heavyweight title contender, has agreed to assist Johnny Risko in training for Risko's bout with Mickey Walker here February 24, it was announced today.

Stribling and Risko will start training together at Hardy's Casino, Miami Beach, Monday or Tuesday, Pa. Stribling announced.

Stribling said he did not plan any heavy work immediately, but would help Risko condition himself. Walker started training last Friday at the Hollywood Casino.

The Macon (Ga.) fighter's purchase of the Oaks hotel at Bartow, Fla., for $10,000 was announced late yesterday. Under the terms of transaction, Stribling will operate the hotel for at least 10 years. He said he expected to make it his winter home.

even a slight dent against superior skill and greater experience, greater ring smartness.

In one way Baer got a good break. He was paid several thousand dollars to take a boxing lesson that he needed badly. He knows now, or should know, the job he has ahead before he is ready to mix with the best boxing society. He won't run across as good a boxer as Loughran in a long time, but that doesn't alter the fact that Max the Walloper needs a lot more schooling in hitting his target. A lot of ammunition is no good if you can't splash against the right target.

Still a Good Prospect.

BAER is still a good prospect, if schooled and handled correctly. Any fighter who is young, strong, game, aggressive and a good puncher has a place in the game today.

Jacksonville Is Off Schmeling's Card

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Max Schmeling will not fight in Jacksonville on his barnstorming tour. Ed Corley, national guard matchmaker, announced tonight.

Schmeling was due to fight here on February 19. A disagreement as to terms caused decision not to stage the fight, Corley said.

Craig Wood Takes Open at Harlingen

HARLINGEN, Texas, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., won the $3,500 Harlingen open golf tournament today with a 36-hole score of 139, nailing out Horton Smith, of New York, by one stroke. First prize was $1,000.

for there are not many of these around now. To most of them the game is still "the art of self-defense," with the accent on self-defense.

Baer is willing to take any sort of chance to land a punch, where so few of the others are. But experience and boxing skill still mean something. Loughran proved this as effectively as any one could prove it.

One of the most interesting features of the recent Baer-Loughran party was the large face of Primo Carnera peering through the ropes.

His eyes remained fixed on the stabbing left hand, which cut down extra weight and greater power. Carnera is now getting ready to start south for his second Maloney test.

On the next occasion it is almost a certainty that the score will run against the Boston fighter who outscrambled the human Mount Everest at their first meeting. Carnera, also, had a chance to soak up a good boxing lesson from the crafty Loughran without having his nose or mouth in the way. It is a much pleasanter way to take instruction. CRACKERS MAIL PAPERS, ORDER 'HOLDOUT' WAR

Five-Day Limit Is Set by Officials Before Suspension.

been a season when a good ball player was out of a job.

BIT OF FEAR.

CONSEQUENTLY one may suspect a certain amount of trepidation in the baseball offices. The statements appear very firm indeed. But there will be some owner who starts buying up the surplus talent which can run, hit and field. And the panic will be on.

Bringing the matter home, the Crackers should have little trouble. Baseball owners weren't so adamant in their stand that they shaved off the salaries of their good players.

Some of those coming down from the majors, where salaries were very, very plump, may be in a hold-outish mood. The Cracker trouble may come from some of those. At least two men coming from the White Sox have been used to salaries near a thousand dollars a month. That is more than a Class A club can pay.

NO GATE CUT.

ADMISSION prices in baseball will not be reduced. The Southern league has always been a cheap league at the gate. Baseball is the only sport left where a couple of hours of entertainment by trained and skilled athletes may be had for 75 cents or a dollar.

The fight fans pay higher for their entertainment. And see only a few minutes of it. And in most cases the entertainers are not nearly so skilled as the ball players are in their art. Baseball prices at the gate haven't been exorbitant.

At any rate a week hence will find the contracts coming back—signed or not. Spring is just around the corner. Listen for a robin any morning now.

HUNDREDS OF HORSES FATTENED FOR MEAT

CALIPATRIA, Cal., Feb. 8.—(U) Hundreds of horses are being fattened in alfalfa pastures near here like cattle for slaughter.

It is another case of unemployment. Blaise and Dobbin look up from their grazing to see tractors in near-by fields doing the jobs they used to do, plowing, planting or harvesting.

For several years the wild and near-wild horses in western states have been rounded up and driven or shipped to packing plants. The supply is diminishing. Cattle-raising methods are being adopted. Horses from desert ranges are moved to better feed to falten these for market.

“Packing a mule, pack the best meat in tins and ship it to France or Russia, where horse flesh is regarded as something of a delicacy.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(AP)—A measure to legalize dissemination of birth control information will be advocated this week by Margaret Sanger in her first appearance at a congressional hearing.

The presence of the birth control crusader before a senate subcommittee next Friday also will be the second time since 1873 when arguments on this subject have been made in congress.

Mary Ware Dennett, author of a celebrated sex education pamphlet was the other witness, appearing several years ago.

Sanger will testify for a bill by Senator Gillett, of Massachusetts authorizing dissemination of birth control information by licensed physicians, hospitals, clinics and medical schools.

The sub-committee includes Gillett, Borah, of Idaho, and Bratton, of New Mexico. Legislation against birth control information was enacted in 1873 at the chapel of Harry G. Poole with Dr. A. R. Caldwell officiating. Internment will be in Magnolia cemetery.
